Fears School Closing Unless State Aid Arrives

MILLER SAYS SYSTEM TO BE BROKE DEC. 1

Favors Shutdown Rather Than Jeopardize Credit or Hold Up Teachers' Pay.

CONDITION GENERAL IN OHIO

State Authorities See Special Session of Legislature as Only Salvation.

Unless Mansfield schools receive more funds from the state foundation program by Dec. 1, the city's public schools probably will be closed soon after that time Supt. W. L. Miller said today.

While city school officials were hopeful that there will be some means of preventing the threatened closing, there appeared little chance that the state foundation program will be able to meet its November obligations, needed to operate the system.

Favors Closing.

Mansfield schools have enough funds available to operate until Dec. 1, but Supt. Miller said he would recommend closing, after that date rather than jeopardize the district's credit or force teachers to work without pay.

A special session of the state legislature, which school interests are seeking, apparently is the only means of preventing the closing of 75 per cent of the schools in Ohio, state school authorities said.

Pointing out that the foundation program will have a deficit of $16,500,000 by Jan. 1, David Sutton, state education department finance expert, said, "We do not consider it advisable to ruin the credit of the 1,787 school taxing subdivisions."

"Consequently, unless a session of the legislature is held, we will be forced to withhold the authorization of notes in the November settlement."

Issue Notes.

With the state unable to pay its obligations to the districts in cash, it has been authorizing the issuing of notes by the school boards which have been retired as school funds were collected. The local boards have been forced to pay interest on the loans from their own general funds.

ASKS INQUIRY

Davey Suggests U. S. Send in Pension Investigators.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey today invited the federal social security board to send an "impartial agent" to "learn the facts" about Ohio's administration of old age pensions. Davey expressed the opinion that such a representative would find the board's findings of inefficiency were incorrect.

"In order to make it a little easier for the social security board to recede from its untenable and unjust position," the governor said in a statement, "I hereby issue this public invitation to send an impartial agent to learn the facts.

"Their agent will be treated with courtesy and the unfortunate situation which they created can be cured."

Founded Hospital

Eleanor Thomas Jones, founder and manager of the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium, Lexington avenue road, died at her home at the institution last evening after a long illness. Pictured here in nurse's garb, she was noted for her charities which had touched hundreds of Mansfielders. After funeral services Monday arrangements will be made to return the body to her native land, South Wales.

HOSPITAL HEAD TAKEN BY DEATH

Eleanor Thomas Stricken in Institution She Founded and Operated.

Eleanor Thomas Jones, 57, founder and manager of the Eleanor Thomas Sanitarium, and a philanthropist whose charities have touched hundreds of Mansfielders, died at the institution last night after an illness that had confined her to her bed for more than two years.

Noted for her many charities and humanitarian deeds, she had a circle of friends that included persons from every walk of life. It was common knowledge that Eleanor Thomas, as she was generally known, had given over a major portion of a considerable inheritance to the founding of her hospital and the care of unfortunates.

She was a native of Ystiadgynlais, South Wales, having been born there Nov. 14, 1880. Even in her girlhood she showed an unusual understanding of the problems of persons less fortunate than herself and early in her life decided to devote her years to some phase of humanitarian service.

When she was 18 she came to America with her uncle, Dr. Daniel Trotheroe, spending several years in Milwaukee and Chicago before entering Mercy hospital, Cleveland for training, and from which school she graduated.

In 1919 she came to Mansfield and became identiifed with the old Parker sanitarium on South Main street. Later that was abandoned and in 1922, at the request of a number of Mansfield medical men, she built the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium on Lexington avenue road.

Dr. K. G. Parker of this city, who had been associated with her in the Parker sanitarium, was a partner in the project, but sev-

HURT CHASING HALLOWEENERS, MAN, 80, DIES

J. L. Burneson Succumbs After Injuries Suffered in Fall Develop Complications.

PRANKSTERS HUNTED

Police Seeking Identity of Children Responsible for Fatal Disturbance.

John Lawrence Burneson, 80, who was injured when he fell at his home, 375 Marion avenue, as he sought to drive away Halloween pranksters, died early this morning.

Members of his family said his death was indirectly due to his fall, in which he suffered a broken collarbone He had been confined to his bed since, suffering from shock as well as the fall. A few days ago, pneumonia set in, resulting in his death today.

Police, notified of the incident, said they would attempt to learn the identity of the pranksters, and possibly bring charges against them.

Bares Prankster 'Racket.'

The incident brought to light a Halloween "racket" said to have been conducted by boys and girls in the Marion avenue neighborhood and other sections of the city. Chief Meade K. Bates said he had learned today.

Groups had called on householders, he said, promising "protection" against Halloween depredations and annoyances for the payment.

Such a group had called at the Burneson home the night before the accident, it was learned.

Their demands refused, the group, said to have been composed of both boys and girls, tore the street number off the house and threw the numerals on the porch, according to Mr. Burneson's daughter, Ruth.

Second Disturbance.

The next night, last Friday, a group again started a disturbance around the Burneson home, according to the daughter, who was not sure whether it was the same band or another.

Mr. Burneson, who had been in ill health and was nervous, went out on the front porch to drive them away, the daughter's account of the accident continued.

He slipped on the top step and fell, fracturing his collarbone and suffering bruises. His death this morning was attributed to the fall,

GET $200 LOOT

Sneak Thieves Busy As Mrs. Roosevelt Speaks in Wisconsin.

GREEN BAY, Wis.—(U.P.)—Three sneak thieves crept into the box office at the Columbus club last night and stole $200 while Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the president, was addressing an audience of 2,500 on good neighbor policy and the peace movement.

Actress, Friend of Hopkins, Plunges 16 Floors to Death

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Dorothy Hale, motion picture actress, plunged to her death early today from a window of her 16th floor room in the Hampshire House, exclusive hotel near Central park.

Mrs. Hale, described a few years ago by a Hollywood producer as a "great movie find," was the widow of Gardiner Hale, of Chicago, killed in 1931 when his automobile went over a 500-foot cliff in California.

Detective James Leech, who made a preliminary investigation, said the actress might have fallen from the window when she attempted to open it shortly after she returned to her room at 6:20 a. m.

Reports that Mrs. Hale had become engaged to Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, were denied last summer.

The victim's body was clad in a black dinner dress with gold ornaments. A corsage of tea roses clung to her bosom.

Ashbrook Lashes Townsend Plan; Dockery Aids Woodward

SAYS IDEA SELFISH

West Sings Praises Of Roosevelt at Ashland Rally.

Unloosing an attack on the Townsend plan, William A. Ashbrook, veteran congressman from the 17th district, told an audience of 800 at a Democratic rally at Ashland last night that supporters of the movement were "selfish individuals being cruelly deceived by a group of demagogs."

Ashbrook lashed out at his opponent, Walter B. Woodward of Bellville, avowed Townsendite running on the G. O. P. ticket, and the $200 a month plan after he had been interrupted by hecklers at the rear of the hall when he referred to the present campaign as being an issue over a 2 per cent transaction tax instead of an issue of Democrats and Republicans.

Interrupted by Shout.

"Now if any of the Townsendites—," Ashbrook started, when he was halted by a lone shout from the rear of the hall. It was taken up immediately by a group of persons apparently supporters of the plan.

"You are just the people I want to talk to," the congressman said as he pointed his finger at the group after the disturbance had died down.

"You are the people who are being cruelly deceived by a gang of demagogs and I want to tell you that you are dreaming of something you'll never get."

Ashbrook was one of the speakers on the program with Charles West, presidential contact man, who launched a speaking tour of the state without the sponsorship of the Democratic state committee.

"You Townsendites are a selfish group," Ashbrook asserted. "It is only selfishness on your part to

Taft Set for Debate; Sawyer Heads for City

Democrats to Fire 'Both Barrels' at 2 Major Rallies In City.

Richland county Democrats today prepared to unloose a doubled barrel barrage on the political front tomorrow when Charles Sawyer, gubernatorial nominee, and Robert J. Bulkley, senatorial candidate for re-election appear at two district rallies here.

Both candidates will address a 1 p. m. luncheon of Democratic women from the 8th and 17th districts tomorrow at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and a county rally at the party's headuarters on West Fourth street at 7:30 p. m.

Sawyer who asserted last night at Middletown that he had not "budged an inch" from his primary platform, is expected to

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—New Deal expenditures were scheduled to undergo another pro and con discussion tonight when Democratic Sen. Robert J. Bulkley and his Republican opponent, Robert A. Taft, engage in the third of their series of "Lincoln-Douglas" debates at Cincinnati.

Taft, speaking before 800 Republicans at Marysville last night, declared the real issue of the campaign was not whether the New Deal was right or wrong but whether "all the power of government" should be placed in the hands of the chief executive.

He predicted that if a New Deal congress were elected next month,

Holdup Slayer Gets Chair in Joliet Prison.

JOLIET, Ill—(INS)—John Jelliga, 32, paid with his life in the electric chair early today for the holdup slaying of Edward Pansa, a farmer last December.

Jelliga and Michael Mungas also seriously wounded Pansa's wife, Huldah, when the farmer resisted the invasion of his home near Crete, Ill.

The wounded woman crawled nearly a half mile through the snow for help and a quickly organized posse trapped Jelliga in his home at Whiting, Ind. the same night, Mungas was captured later and hanged himself in jail.

LaGuardia Wants Lehman to Come Out for New Deal.

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (AP) — Mayor LaGuardia of New York City indicated after a conference with President Roosevelt today he would withhold his support of New York's Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for re-election unless the governor stated in the campaign he was firmly behind the New Deal.

The mayor criticized Lehman for avoiding a direct reply to reporters' questions whether he would stress and support the national administration during the state campaign.

Ex-Foe Offers Help If Townsendites Vote G. O. P. Ticket.

AUDIENCE AGREES

Woodward Calls For Enactment of Plan to Remedy Ills.

Already full of surprises, the political campaign in Richland county produced another at a Townsend rally here last night when Col. Oliver H. Dockery of Newark, defeated for the Republican nomination for congress, promised to campaign for Walter B. Woodward, the Townsend candidate who beat him, if the county Townsend organization will support the entire Republican ticket.

Telling the audience of 400 at Republican headquarters that "I am not sold on the Townsend plan," Col. Dockery said, "and if I am to go out and talk convincingly to the Doubting Thomas Republicans, I must have the assurance that you are willing to support the G. O. P. ticket in return."

Almost every person in the audience raised his hand when Col. Dockery asked for a vote on his proposal.

"Now it will be easier for me to bear the cross," he said.

Calls Plan 'Best.'

"I have had doubts about raising enough money to put the Townsend plan into operation without bringing inflation," he added, "but some form of old age pension is certain to come and the Townsend plan is about the best proposal I've heard."

"When invited here to speak tonight I was assured this was a Republican meeting, and it is not easy for me to do this in the face of warnings from my friends," Col. Dockery said, "but Woodward and I are Republicans and if we are to elect him in November, we must all support him."

The invitation to speak, he said, came yesterday afternoon from Archie May of Mansfield, Woodward's campaign manager,

STILL HOPEFUL

Dr. Russell, 83, Carries on Fight for Prohibition.

WESTERVILLE — (AP) — Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, co-founder of the Anti-Saloon league and a leader of the "dry" movement for more than 50 years, celebrated his 83rd birthday anniversary today by preparing to carry on his fight for prohibition of liquor in the United States.

The agile lawyer-preacher-crusader is not discouraged by setbacks which have marked his efforts from time to time. Repeal six years ago of the prohibition amendment was a serious blow, but Dr. Russell looks confidently ahead toward eventual success.

Dr. Russell says he considers conditions now worse than in the days of the old saloon.

Mansfield, Chicago Firms Low Bidders On School Bond Issue

Asking 2¼ per cent interest, the Mansfield Saving Trust National bank and the Brown Harriman company, Chicago, were the low bidders today on the Mansfield board of education's $550,000 school bond issue.

Bids from 36 bond firms were opened and tabulated at noon by the board which will meet tonight to sell the bonds and let a contract for construction of the Senior high school shop addition.

Four Mansfield contractors submitted bids on the $25,000 shop addition, with John W Ness turning in the low bid at $20,572.

The Charles Hoffman company, Mansfield, was low on the plumbing and heating job, offering to do the installation for $4,800. The Richland Electric company submitted a bid for $1,295, low on the electrical installation for the building.

Board members said the bonds probably would be sold to the Mansfield Savings bank despite an identical bid from the Chicago firm, since the bank offered a premium of $1,275 as against $1,045 for the Brown Harriman Co.

The low interest rate was expected to reduce the cost of the bonds to about 58 cents on the $1,000 property valuation as compared with the 83 cents in the original estimate.

At 58 cents, the additional tax rate would be only 18 cents per $1,000 over the present rate. Due to the retirement of school bonds this year, 40 cents will be removed from the present rate.

INVADE CITY AFTER SPEEDY 100-MILE PUSH

Report 'Utter Confusion' in Metropolis as They Pierce Defenses.

GOVERNMENT IN FLIGHT

Fleeing Chinese Dynamite All Utilities in Pursuance of 'Scorched Earth' Policy.

(By Associated Press)

HONGKONG — Japanese troops this afternoon entered Canton, South China metropolis and objective of a fast overland offensive that started more than 100 miles away on Oct. 12.

An official source reported that "utter confusion" reigned in Canton, vital supply center for Chinese troops in central China, as the invaders pierced the city's first defenses.

Government officials fled to Yungyun, 92 miles north of Canton.

Leave 'Scorched Earth.'

The Chinese dynamited a cement plant, a power plant and other major utilities before the Japanese entrance, carrying out the defenders' "scorched earth" policy of leaving nothing behind for the invaders' use.

As the invaders approached, the Cantonese had tried furiously to dig trenches and make machine-gun emplacements at strategic centers, while hundreds of thousands of inhabitants fled in all directions, leaving a small fraction of the population behind.

Conflicting reports had obscured the real progress of the well-equipped Japanese column, but apparently Chinese resistance was weak during the invaders' advance from Bias bay.

Planes See Flight.

A Japanese spokesman said aerial observation showed the Chinese were retreating in a long line north of Canton.

(Reuters (British News Agency) reported from Shanghai that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, according to reliable reports, was preparing to leave Hankow, the other main Japanese objective and Chiang's provisional capital about 550 miles north of Canton. A large part of the Hankow population had fled as the Japanese advanced to within 35 miles of Hankow.)

In Canton, only one house in ten was found tenanted. Most shops were closed. Streets were empty.

Czechs Call Off All Observance Of 20th Birthday

PRAGUE —(AP)— The Czechoslovak government today decreed cancellation of Czechoslovakia's 20th birthday party scheduled for next Friday.

The cabinet advised the people to "spend the day in the work of rebuilding the republic," instead of celebrating as in previous years.

Oct. 28 commemorates the bloodless revolution when the Czechs removed the old Austrian administration without resistance after the Vienna government accepted President Woodrow Wilson's peace terms.

'BEST MANAGED'

New Hampshire City Meets Expenses for 45 Years.

SOMERSWORTH, N. H.—(INS)—The Somersworth Chamber of Commerce claimed in an official bulletin that this city is the "best managed city in America." The claim was supported chiefly by the fact that the community for the last 45 years has met expenses out of current income despite losses in valuation due to depression.

The Story of OD and AD and the AUTOMOBILE

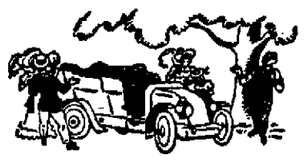
OD and AD were machinists many years ago. One day, at a fair, they saw a buggy with an engine in it. They saw many ways to improve it, and each decided to build an automobile. But when it came time to sell their first cars, OD and AD had different ideas.

How OD Tried to Sell His First Automobile



OD invited all his friends and neighbors to his house. He drove his automobile around the block and gave them a ride. They were thrilled. They wanted to buy it. But when they learned that it cost $3,000, not one of OD's friends could pay such a high price.

FRENCH STUDY MOVING TROOPS IN BIG PLANES

Transports by Sea Unsafe, Program Would Transfer 750 Men Nightly.

(By United Press)

PARIS — French aviation experts are studying plans for using the new series of giant seaplanes of the Lieutenant Paris type, of which France will soon have five, as troop transports across the Mediterranean.

It is estimated that each of the planes could carry 150 men in addition to the crews. In event of naval warfare in the Mediterranean, which would make troop transport by sea unsafe, these planes could make regular night flights and bring across 750 men nightly.

Besides the Lieutenant Paris, which now is making a series of experimental flights over the North Atlantic southern route, via the Azores and Bermuda to New York, the French already have two planes of the same type. They belong to the navy auxiliary air force.

A fourth Latecoere plane of the same type is nearing completion at Biscarosse near Bordeaux, and a fifth is under construction for Air France, commercial air transport line.

Experts figure that 150 men could easily be carried. They would make a total weight, with equipment of about 15 tons. The Lieutenant Paris weighs 18½ tons empty and 37 tons normally with a full load, although on one of its recent Atlantic flights the ship took off early carrying 41 tons. The weight of the men would leave the plane well under capacity and still allow room for enough gasoline for a flight across the Mediterranean.

Only slight alterations to the internal design of the ships would be needed to carry 150 soldiers. They have two decks, and 112 could easily be carried comfortably on the lower deck and 38 on the upper deck in addition to the crew.

Their equipment would be included in the total weight and there would be room for it either in the same compartments as the men or in fore and aft chambers.

NEW GRAPEFRUITS ARRIVE, HELP TO SOLVE BREAKFAST PROBLEM

The first of the seedless grapefruits from Texas will be available at Mansfield markets Saturday, thus solving the breakfast fruit problem for many housewives. Both the natural and the pink pulp variety will make its appearance.

California oranges of the new crop will join the Florida oranges also this week. Even the citrus itself, which is popular for candy and preserving, will be offered at a number of markets.

A rarity on local markets will be fresh green olives from California groves, which may be "put up" according to the tastes of the housewife. Fresh figs and the new crop of dates are being offered this week.

A favorite item and one that is available at most food places, is the "soup package" which contains the right assortment of vegetables for soup.

Fresh broccoli, Brussel sprouts and cauliflower, all similar in taste, are among the green vegetables that recommend themselves for fall menus. Hothouse tomatoes and cucumbers replaced the outdoor variety some time ago, and crisp, bleached pascal celery from Ashland, green onions and red and white radishes are still to be found at all markets.

New Jersey sweet potatoes and cranberries suggest baked ham dinners, or even chicken dinners, with red cabbage as a salad.

Hooliganism is a term derived from the Hooley gang in London's east end around 1900, and implies ruffianism and rowdyism.

$47,000 PAID IN

90 Per Cent of West Side Water Bills Collected.

With more than 90 per cent of the 7,500 west side water and sewer rental bills paid, the water department yesterday closed its October collection with approximately $47,000 of the $51,000 billing received, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage departments announced.

Lingafelter also reported that receipts in the water department for the first nine months of 1938 had dropped more than $4,000 below the corresponding period last year. Receipts for the first nine months of this year were $96,241 against $100,443 last year.

He pointed out that general business conditions were reflected in the decreased receipts which were largely in industrial billings.

Despite conditions, the water department has shown a high increase in the collection of delinquent accounts which have been trimmed more thn $8,000 since Jan. 1, Lingafelter said.

Dakota Keeps Accurate Record About Fires.

BISMARCK, N. D.—(AP)—Within five minutes after receiving a report of a fire the state fire marshal's office can tell whether the owner or tenant of the damaged property had a fire anywhere in North Dakota during the last 20 years.

Deputy Fire Marshal Charles Schwartz says the system was perfected to help authorities trace arsonists.

NOW--See Clothes Wash up to 15% Whiter--with NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL

Amazing New Ingredient not only makes new High-Test OXYDOL far whiter washing—but also makes it give up to TWICE THE SUDS even in hard water...

"Impossible!" said millions of women when they heard that America's outstanding laundry soap had been improved.

"Unbelievable!" said scientists when they heard that new High-Test OXYDOL has the power to wash clothes far whiter than the old.

Yet it's true—every word of it! For an amazing new ingredient now makes High-Test Oxydol as much as 15% whiter washing than old-fashioned soaps. Yet keeps it safe for washable colors and fabrics—safe for hands.

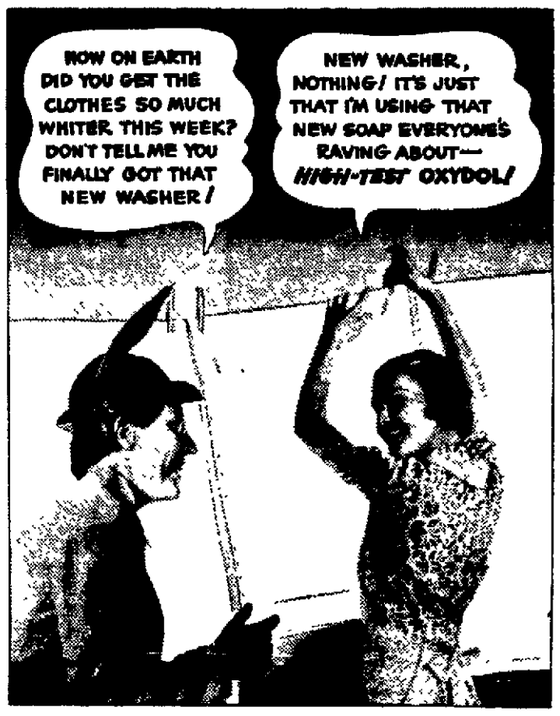
Tested against old-style soaps even in hard water, High-Test Oxydol does these amazing things:—(1) Washes white clothes as much as 15% whiter. (2) Gives up to TWICE the suds—suds that actually stand up two to three times longer, in tub or washing machine.

But that's not all. For washable colored things washed in new High-Test Oxydol keep their freshness and sparkle, wash after wash, to a degree that is a revelation. Even gay, colored prints washed as many as 175 consecutive times in new High-Test Oxydol suds showed no perceptible sign of fading—came brilliant, fresh!

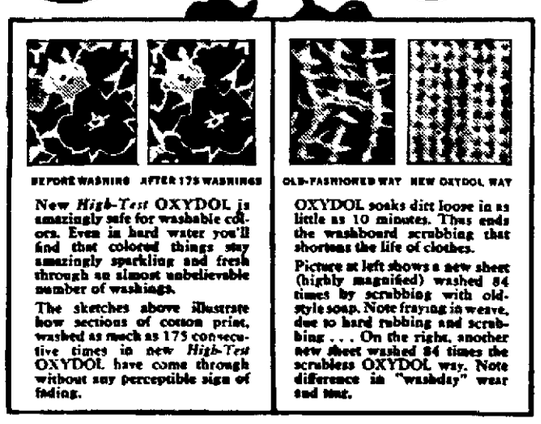
Furthermore—High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without the ruinous scrubbing or boiling associated with less up to date soaps.

You will be surprised to find how economical new High-Test Oxydol is. Cup for cup, it goes up to ¼ again as far—washes up to 25% more clothes than the old-fashioned soaps you've probably used before.

Try High-Test OXYDOL and see if you don't find an utterly new experience in easier washdays, whiter clothes. Get a package today. Procter & Gamble.



NOW ON EARTH DID YOU GET THE CLOTHES SO MUCH WHITER THIS WEEK? DON'T TELL ME YOU FINALLY GOT THAT NEW WASHER!
NEW WASHER, NOTHING! IT'S JUST THAT I'M USING THAT NEW SOAP EVERYONE'S RAVING ABOUT—HIGH-TEST OXYDOL!
COLORS STAY SO FRESH AND BRIGHT
CLOTHES LAST FAR LONGER, TOO



BEFORE WASHING AFTER 175 WASHINGS
New High-Test OXYDOL is amazingly safe for washable colors. Even in hard water you'll find that colored things stay amazingly sparkling and fresh through an almost unbelievable number of washings.
The sketches above illustrate how sections of cotton print, washed as much as 175 consecutive times in new High-Test OXYDOL have come through without any perceptible sign of fading.
OLD-FASHIONED WAY NEW OXYDOL WAY
OXYDOL soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. Thus ends the washboard scrubbing that shortens the life of clothes.
Picture at left shows a new sheet (highly magnified) washed 84 times by scrubbing with old-style soap. Note fraying in weave, due to hard rubbing and scrubbing . . . On the right, another new sheet washed 84 times the scrubless OXYDOL way. Note difference in "washday" wear and tear.

YOUR DEALER NOW HAS THE NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL, THE SAME ORANGE AND BLUE BULL'S-EYE PACKAGE—THE ONLY CHANGE IS IN THE SOAP!

EVER WANT TO WRITE? HERE'S NOVEL FOR YOU

'The Great American Novel,' Added by Library, Story of Budding Author.

"The Great American Novel" by Clyde Brion Davis is the saga of Homer Zigler and it will appear to every reader who has had an impulse, one time of another, to write a novel. This is the story of Homer who wanted to do something with his life, and always intended to write a fine novel, but could never get around to doing it. The book, searching but often laugh-provoking, with its unfulfilled dreams, is among the new fiction volumes at the Public Library this week.

Just as poetic and facinating as its title is Elizabeth Madox Roberts' "Black Is My True Love's Hair", the simple story of a country girl in Kentucky who finds that her first love has turned to hate but who realizes happiness in a new and stronger love

It is a novel of the land, the life of nature's creatures, the struggle to bring crops to fruition and in theme and treatment is something of a companion piece to "The Yearling", Marjorie Rawlings' beautiful story of farm life in Florida

Percy Marks' understanding of youth problems is again evident in his new book "What's A Heaven For?", Nat Wayne is a college graduate who achieves a worldly success, but feels at the same time a sense of profound failure, a frustration of his strength

Other New Fiction.

The list of new fiction this week also carries the following titles and authors "Heartbroken Melody", by Norris, "Sons of the Saddle", Raine, "Valley Beyond" Mowery; "Chinese River", Van Dyke; "Late Colonel Judd", DeMeyer; "Blood of the North", Hendryx; "Big Show" by Cooke, "Sword and the Rose", Smith, and "The Brothers", by Wells.

Of interest to followers of international affairs will be "Japan in Transition" by Emil Lederer and Emy Lederer Seidler. It provides an interpretation of the Oriental empire which has been adopting many Occidental methods. As background there are chapters on the history, religion and conventions which largely explain the final chapters on Japan's foreign policy and economic development.

Anne Lindberg's "Listen! The Wind" is an account of her airplane trip with her husband across the Atlantic from Africa to South America on one leg of a globe circling flight The technique of flying is explained; also the hazards and worries of the trip.

Virginia's Wolf's suggestion that the women of the world today have an opportunity for achievement through concerted inaction is an unusual commentary on the education and economic freedom of women, and their part in world affairs. The title, "Three Guineas" arises from the fact that three different organizations requested her aid to the extent of a guinea each.

Other non-fiction this week includes: "Profits From Courtesy", by Hopkins; "Aspects of Science", Dantzig, "Official Raido Service Handbook", Bernsley; "Simplified Engineering", Parker; "Cowboy Songs", Lomax, "Wayfarer in Estonia Latvia, and Lithuania" by Davies; "Northern Lights", Chapman; "General Washington's Son of Israel", Hart; "King's Counsel; The Life of Sir Henry Curtis-Bennett", by Wild and Curtis-Bennett; "Marconi: The Man and His Wireless" new edition, by Dunlap; and "Tarnished Warrior" by Jacobs.

PIONEER RELIC

Book Shows Purchases of Rum In Year 1799.

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Henry Brentano of St. Paul, Ore., wondered today whether he had uncovered a valuable relic of pioneer days in the form of a book showing purchases or rum, calico and other goods in New York between the years 1799 and 1903. The ledger recorded many sales to New Yorkers, most of whom appeared to be of Dutch origin.

LETTER 23 YEARS LATE

MALTA, Mont.—(U.P.)—It took it 23 years to arrive, but Nels Watney, local garageman, finally received the letter his sister wrote Jan. 14, 1915, from Carpio, N. D., 300 miles away.

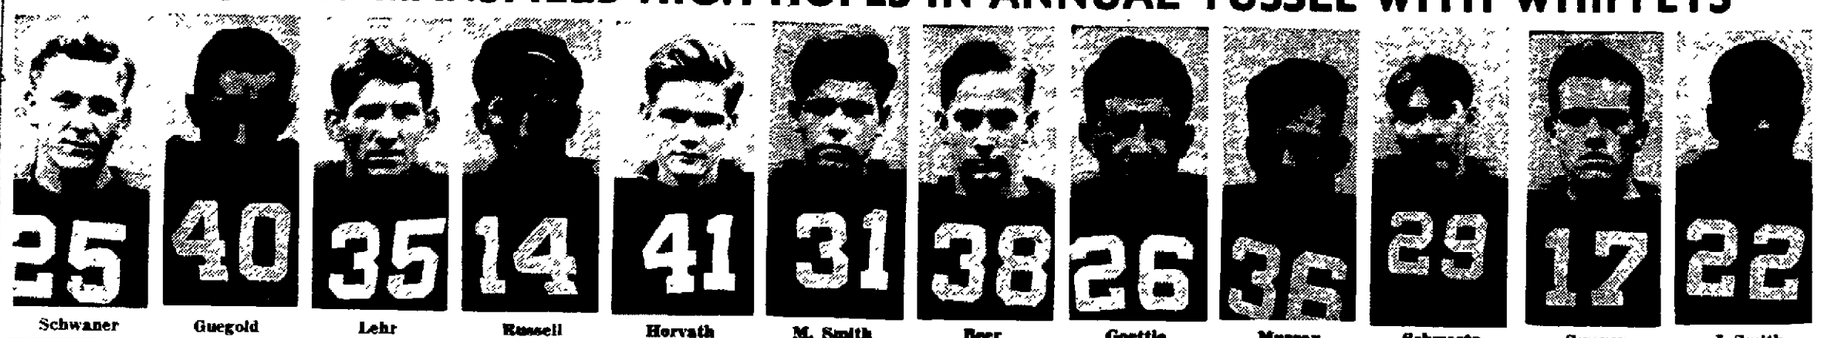
Tygers Believed Due for Comeback In Shelby Game

THEY'LL CARRY MANSFIELD HIGH HOPES IN ANNUAL TUSSLE WITH WHIPPETS



Schwaner — Guegold — Lehr — Russell — Horvath — M. Smith — Beer — Goettle — Murray — Schwartz — Swoyer — I. Smith

By OSCAR RUHL.
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

UNDERDOGS on Monday, even choices on Wednesday, and slight favorites today.

That's the way the odds shifted on the Mansfield high Tygers for the extension of their rivalry with Shelby's undefeated, untied Whippets at W. W. Skiles field in the border county city Saturday.

But all indications pointed to a return of the even Wednesday betting figures before the two teams take to the field at 2:30 p. m.

Stronger than the score of their game with Sandusky would indicate, Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers are believed to be due for a comeback.

However, the Tygers suffered a severe physical beating at Sandusky, and Murphy was not certain today whether all of his regulars would be in the starting lineup.

Admitting that it may sound like a "bear" story, Murphy said today that Capt. Rich Nagle has attended only two practice sessions this week and was forced to leave both because of a recurrence of pain in a shoulder injured at Sandusky.

Dependable Harold Gallagher also sustained a shoulder injury last Saturday, but Murphy indicated that he would probably be in the lineup if the injured member continues to show improvement.

The rest of the starting lineup will be practically the same, according to Murphy. Dick McMullen, of course, has not been able to start since the first game of the season and Murphy is not looking for him to be ready Saturday, although he got into the Sandusky game for a few minutes.

Howard Hershey, who suffered a knee injury at Sandusky, will be in the starting lineup, however.

Paired with Hershey in the backfield will be the two Smiths, Marshall and Ike, unless Nagle is able to start, and Al Schwaner, who will be burdened with the extra duties usually assigned to the injured captain.

Murphy said that he would not know definitely until game time whether Nagle would be in the opening firing line.

The Tyger coach expects Shelby to offer the Tygers the most difficult test since 1933 when the Whippets pulled down Mansfield in a game that cost the N. C. O. championship.

But Murphy has not forgotten last year's game. He started a lineup that is virtually the same as this year's, and Shelby obtained a 13 to 6 lead in the first half before he could send in the regulars.

Mansfield managed to win the game by a 38 to 19 score, but only after Johnny Hallabrin and his cohorts took charge of things. The Tygers will have no Hallabrin to fall back on Saturday.

While the odds have been shifting back and forth all week, the Whippets, who have surprised even their most optimistic followers with their brilliant play this season, are not prepared to concede anything, and a "battle royal" is in prospect.

With the game the only one on Saturday afternoon's district program, the largest crowd in 10 years is expected to bulge Skiles field.

In an effort to extend the winning streak to six games, Coach Bill Query, who has never come out of a Mansfield tilt a winner, intends to depend primarily on the same combination that has worked so effectively this season.

Speed will again be the keynote of Shelby's versatile attack that is yet untested. Harold Bliss and Bob Baker, a pair of "breakaway" backs, whose dashes have confounded every foe this season, will team up with Joe Miller and James Terman in the backfield.

Every starter in the Shelby lineup is a senior except Bill Yosick, who has another year of competition.

Bob Daugherty, Shelby guard, who was hurt in the Bucyrus brawl, will be in the starting lineup, it was learned today.

Tygers Hold Edge in Series
Winners in 9 Out of Last 15
Shelby Won Last Game in '33

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

SHELBY high school supporters can gain a lot of satisfaction out of a victory over Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers at Skiles field Saturday.

The Tygers hold a big edge in the series which had its inception at the turn of the century, and while a victory would not reduce the margin to any great extent, it would square matters for some of the trimmings the Whippets have absorbed in recent years.

BRANDON

Shelby has beaten the Mansfield high gridsters only once in the last eight years. That victory came in 1933 when the Whippets sprung a major upset in winning by a 13 to 12 count.

This was the first defeat suffered by the Tygers in a game with an N. C. O. conference foe since 1928 when Shelby took Mansfield into camp by a 7 to 6 margin. It was shortly thereafter that the Tygers started the string of undefeated games which remained intact over a period of many years.

Tygers Tallied 33 Points

DURING the last 15 years, the Tygers have won nine games. A brief resume of these games follows:

1937—Mansfield 39, Shelby 18: Trailing 12 to 6 at the half, the Tygers, led by Johnny Hallabrin, tallied 33 points in the third and fourth periods to win.

1936—Mansfield 33, Shelby 0: Bill Distl and Hallabrin romped in this one as Harold Bliss, then a promising sophomore, can well remember.

1935—Mansfield 32, Shelby 26: This was one of the greatest games of the long rivalry. Thrills were abundant as the heavily-favored Tygers broke a tie with Nick Weber's touchdown in the fading minutes to win.

1934—Mansfield 33, Shelby 7: With Bart Clement and Paul Birmelin taking the hero roles, the Tygers avenged the whipping of the previous year.

1933—Shelby 13, Mansfield 12: This was a heartbreaker for Mansfield, with an inspired Shelby team, led by Orville Labarge and Lawrence Fry, upsetting the dope. A bit of trickery following a time out near the Mansfield goal line did the trick.

1932—Mansfield 33, Shelby 0: Gene Brandon returned the opening kickoff 99 yards for a touchdown to set off the spark in this one.

1931—Mansfield 41, Shelby 6: This victory was manufactured by one of the greatest teams ever to represent Mansfield. Brandon was also prominent in this game. He returned a punt 81 yards for a score.

1930—Mansfield 7, Shelby 0: Completely outplayed in the first half, Mansfield came back to win in the third period on Charles McKinley's touchdown.

1929—Mansfield 27, Shelby 0: This is the game that the Tygers were not supposed to win. There were 3,000 at Stadium field to see it. Gene Earick scored the first touchdown in the opening minutes after

WITH Galion playing at Mt. Vernon, Ashland performing at Marion and Shelby resting until Saturday, Madison high Rams will hold the night football stage in the neighborhood tonight.

The once-defeated Rams will engage Norwalk St. Pauls at 8 p. m. in a game that is expected to end favorably for Coach Al Fendrick's men.

Touchdown Hungry.

The highest scoring team in the state, Madison will undoubtedly put on the power tonight to protect the touchdown advantage it holds at present

Madison has tallied 189 points in five games, with Gene Harmon the scoring leader with 85. Wing Bill Wilkins is next high in the scoring race at Madison with 69.

These two Rams will be watched closely by Norwalk tacklers, but it might pay them to give a little attention to Capt. Joe Miller who also has joined the touchdown parade.

Whether Madison's anxiety to score will affect its play remains to be seen, but Fendrick has a flock of reserves available if the first-stringers bog down.

The Rams, who coasted to an easy victory over Upper Sandusky last week, are in perfect condition for the tilt, and appear ready for a battle if Norwalk threatens to become serious.

Fendrick used his regulars less than two periods in walloping Upper Sandusky.

Man to Watch.

The chief threat in the Norwalk lineup is Merner, a 150-pound fullback

The weights of the two teams are about on a par, with the Rams packing more speed.

K-B Coals Meet Canton Club At League Park

STILL searching for their first victory of the season, the Kallmerten & Baer Coals will attempt to end their hunt next Sunday when they make another home appearance at League park.

Coach Gip Miller's semi-pro gridsters will tangle with the R. & J. Furnitures of Canton, formerly known as the Canton Bulldogs.

The Furnitures rate as one of the stronger Canton clubs, according to Business Manager Johnny Villella. This virtually is the same team which defeated the Glad Hand Billiards a couple of years ago.

Beaten by one touchdown in four straight games, Coach Miller figures his Coals are ready to cash in on a victory, and they will if hard work will turn the trick.

The Coals are holding daily workouts again this week in an attempt to nip the string of setbacks.

Saturday Will Tell

Showdown Comes on Week-End for Four Challengers in Big Ten.

By ERNEST BARCELLA

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — This will be "showdown Saturday" for four challengers in the Big Ten's football title race and for the midwest's non-conference power—Notre Dame.

While Minnesota, leader and defending champion of the corn-belt circuit, is idle, Illinois, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Purdue will be trying to rub each other out of the chase to catch up with the Gophers. Illinois, with one conference victory and no defeat, goes against once-tied Northwestern in the standout Big Ten battle of the day. Wisconsin, tied with Illinois for runner-up honors, takes on once-beaten but vastly improved Purdue.

Also Scheduled.

These are the most vital engagements of a week-end that also will see Ohio State, with one conference triumph and one tie, try to gain ground at the expense of hapless Chicago and the other three Big Ten teams—Michigan, Iowa and Indiana—clashing with outside foes—Yale, Colgate and Kansas State.

The No. 1 non-conference battle brings together two of the nation's undefeated and untied teams—Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech.

Chief interest in the Big Ten combats centers on the game between Northwestern and Illinois. Northwestern, which battled Ohio State to a scoreless tie last week, rates as one of the standout threats to Minnesota's supremacy. The game is similarly significant to Illinois which faces an opportunity to go into a first-place tie with Minnesota.

Wisconsin, which also has a chance to go into a tie with Minnesota, will present a revamped lineup against Purdue. Indications were that there would be two new faces in the line that was battered by Pittsburgh last week. Until it was smothered by Pitt, Wisconsin appeared well on its way. It will be up against a Purdue eleven that held Minnesota to a 7-0 score and then came back from behind last week to tie Fordham.

Notre Dame, with victories over Kansas, Georgia Tech and Illinois, faces a Carnegie Tech eleven that knocked over Davis-Elkins, Wittenberg and a good Holy Cross team. Revenge will be the main motif of this battle. The Fighting Irish will be trying to get even for the 9-7 defeat inflicted by Carnegie last year.

Wolves Play Yale.

The east will get a look at the best Michigan team in five years tomorrow when the Wolverines resume relations with Yale.

Indiana, which hasn't scored a touchdown or a victory this year, will be shooting for both against Kansas State which was shelled 21-0 by Northwestern and then came back with victories over Missouri and Marquette.

Colgate, fresh from an upset victory over Columbia, had an edge over Iowa, which last week scored its first Big Ten triumph since 1936.

THREE teams shared first place in the Grade School touch football league as play reached the halfway mark yesterday. Tied are the representatives of Bushnell, West Fifth, Bowman and Western schools.

Bushnell registered its fourth straight triumph by defeating West Fifth, 18 to 2, with Miller, Hergatt and Johns scoring the touchdowns. Moorhead, Gagich and Komjonevich scored for Bowman as it trounced Hedges, 19 to 0.

Weaver scored three times as Western walloped Prospect, 25 to 0. Hahn scored the other touchdown. Brinkerhoff and Carpenter battled to a tie in the other game.

ASHLAND LOSES PUGLISI, SHIVELY FOR OTTERBEIN

ASHLAND — Although two of the main hopes of the Ashland college Eagles may not be in the lineup for Saturday's game with Otterbein college at Westerville, Ashland Coach Frank Lonero believes his small and inexperienced squad may be able to hold its own against Otterbein.

Eugene Puglisi, 155-pound Ashland guard, is definitely out of the lineup with torn ligaments, while Robert Shively, 175-pound center from Nappanee, Ind., is suffering a knee injury which may keep him on the bench Saturday.

Hazelwood of Cycles Hangs Up Games of 277, 200, 209 at Meder Alleys.

RUSSELL HAZELWOOD boosted the Commercial B league individual three-game record to 686 at the Meder alleys last night.

A member of the Shelby Cycles, Hazelwood started his string with a record-breaking 277. He clustered sufficient marks for an even 200 in the inevitable letdown in the middle game, and finished with a 209 for his 686.

Hazelwood's sensational scoring was of little help to the Cycles, however. The first place Office Cafe compiled a 2793 total to take a pair of games from the Shelby team.

Carl Heilman's Grocers punched out a 2878 total to lead the team scoring, with Bechtel setting the pace with a final game of 275 and a 608 three-game count. The Grocers swept their series with the Ohio Public Service entry.

The Mansfield Printers came through with a 2869 total and three wins over the Met's Auto Supplies. Pillar rolled out a 607 for the Printers.

A 2839 total was assembled by the Ringside Cafe, which took two tilts from the Satterlee Restaurant. Adams, 620, and Maier, 600, led the Ringside club, while Ed Henrich was high for the losers with a 247 and 645.

Burton accumulated a 607 total and Hipp a 603 to lead the Mansfield Rugs to a 2771 count and two victories over the Yuncker Sports, paced by Carl Willis, jr., 621.

SELECT ISSUES POINT UPWARD DURING SELLING

Radio Corp. Stock Hits New Top for Year as News Encourages Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — (AP) — Selected stocks generally pointed slightly upward in today's market, but many issues were kept in the background by heavy profit-taking.

Radio Corp., livilest of yesterday's stocks, came out on a block of 15,000 shares, up ¼ at 9, a new top for the past year.

U. S. Steel and General Motors were about unchanged while Chrysler and Bethlehem were ahead a trifle.

Business news continued moderately encouraging, but there were a few cloudy spots on the horizon. Bonds did better in spots. Commodities were steady.

Dun & Bradstreet reported retail distribution for the country as a whole took a slight turn for the worst because of unseasonable weather, with the average decline running from 2 to 4 per cent under the previous week and 4 to 14 per cent below the corresponding period last year.

Not so pleasing also was a renewed drop in commercial loans for the week ended Wednesday. Brokers' loans, at the same time, jumped $19,000,000. The increase was attributed almost entirely to stock market activity.

CHASE FATAL TO AGED RESIDENT

J. L. Burneson, Hurt During Halloween Disturbance at Home, Succumbs.

shock and the complicating pneumonia development.

Commenting on the Halloween "protection" racket today, Chief Bates appealed to householders all over the city to report such incidents to police immediately. Police cruisers will be pressed into service in an effort to round up the youthful extortioners, he said.

Miss Burneson said today she was unable to recognize any members of the groups who had been at her home either night.

Mr. Burneson, a resident of Mansfield for 70 years, was a retired postal employe. He was for many years a mail carrier, retiring from the service in 1918. He was born in Beaver Falls, Pa., Jan. 17, 1858 and came here at the age of 10.

He is survived by his wife, Eleanor, and his daughter, Ruth, at home; two sons, John Lawrence, jr., and Charles H., both of Cleveland; two brothers, James and William, both of Mansfield and three grandchildren.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian church and the Knights of Pythias.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 3:30 p. m. Monday, with Rev. David N. Roller officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

MAPS STUDY ON EXPANSION OF SECURITY ACT

Advisory Council to Take Up Proposal to Enlarge Three Classes of Benefits.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The main trouble with the Social Security law, in the opinion of virtually every administration official who will comment, is that it does not go far enough.

That is the problem which will be before the advisory council on social security at its meeting today. The council composed of representatives of employers, workers and the public, is expected to recommend to the social security board and President Roosevelt a far-reaching program of expansion.

At present the social security act provides three types of economic security:

1. Old age insurance for persons employed in industry and commerce. The board has opened more than 41,000,000 individual accounts. Benefits payable to persons over 65 and beginning Jan. 1, 1942, will range from $10 to $85 a month.

2. Unemployment compensation, a joint federal-state undertaking to provide temporary income to wage earners out of work. About 27,500,000 workers are covered by state unemployment compensation laws.

3. Aid for the needy. This program also is a joint federal-state undertaking. Benefits now are going to 1,734,000 persons as old age assistance, to 631,000 needy children, and to 41,200 blind persons.

Leaves Out Millions.

This in brief is what the social security program is doing at the present time. Officials high in the Roosevelt administration say that despite the large number of persons benefitting or in line to benefit, however, many millions more still are beyond the pale.

They ask, for instance, whether the farm laborer is not entitled to the same degree of social security enjoyed by his cousin in a textile mill in town. They ask the same question about maids, cooks and others in domestic service, and about the employes of charitable and religious institutions.

Including persons in all these classifications there the about 16,000,000 workers now excluded from the program who could, some experts feel, be brought under it. Members of the social security board say they have been left out thus far because of the mechanical difficulties of administering a program as applied to them.

"The very causes that aggravate the economic insecurity of such workers," Mary W. Dewson, a board member, said recently, also increase the difficulty of providing more security through social insurance.

"Among these problems are frequent shifting from one job to another; the high proportion of employers to employes, the ratio often approaching a one-to-one relationship; and the non-business character of an employer group which consists mainly of housewives, small farmers, and so forth."

Since they and their employers would have to pay taxes just as workers and employers in industry do, one of the government's foremost problems is how to collect the tax.

Some experts have suggested that a stamp system be used. Farm and domestic workers and their employers would pay their taxes by buying stamps to be pasted in a record book every time a wage was paid. Each pasting would represent payment of the proper percentage of that wage in old age insurance taxes.

AID FOR ANEMIC FOUND IN OYSTER

Florida Variety Found to Contain 4 Vitamins.

MIAMI, Fla.—(INS)—A means to aid the prevention of tutritional anemia has been found in the Apalachicola oyster, available in this area the year round due to climatic conditions, scientists announce.

The Florida oyster, containing a higher content of iodine than those found anywhere in the United States, has the four vitamin A, B, D, and G. It contains iron and copper for the blood, phosphorus and calcium for the bones and teeth and iodine for healthy thyroids.

Scientists say the Apalachicola oyster is unexcelled in texture and flavor.

SOCIETY GIRL AMONG 3 WOMEN DIVERS HUNTING SUNKEN GOLD

(By International News Service)

BOSTON—Three women, one a society girl, were listed as divers in the crew aboard the 65-foot schooner Story II, engaged in a search for sunken gold off the Massachusetts coast.

The expedition departed from a Boston wharf and headed for the water off Cape Cod and along the Massachusetts coast generally. Members are pledged to continue the treasure hunt until water and weather grow too cold.

Included in the crew of ten persons were the schooner's owner and skipper, Herbert Talbot, a Boston wool broker, and Mrs. Talbot, and their son, Story, for whom the craft was named; Kenneth Jones and Edward Stevenson, brokers; Mrs. Jones, Ginger Hewett, society girl, and daughter of a North Adams mill owner; and Edward Ruggles, Boston advertising man.

In addition, there were two artists, Hjalmar Hermanson and Lawrence O'Toole. Also on board was "Butch," the ship's mascot, a cat.

The most modern diving equipment was obtained to expedite the search for treasure, announced Talbot, and the women have their duties cut out for them. All three rehearsed frequently with the telephone-equipped helmets on the Boston Harbor floor for several weeks, wearing lead-weighted shoes and bathing suits.

Talbot explained he completed a study of sunken treasure ships which he believes will yield a considerable fortune.

CZECHS FALL IN LINE WITH NAZI REQUIREMENTS

Berlin Acts Swiftly to Bring Nation to Terms on German Economic Policies.

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

BERLIN—Nazidom has lost no time in following up Herr Hitler's triumph in the Sudeten crisis by organizing for a drive calculated to make what is left of dismembered Czechoslovakia an economic dependency of Germany.

Government experts were busy on the program even while German troops were marching into Sudetenland to occupy the rich areas ceded by the harassed Prague government. Field Marshal Hermann Goering's visit to the new territory was to size up the economic situation. He performed a similar task when Austria was annexed.

A little story which is going the rounds amidst much Nazi laughter fairly sums up Berlin's attitude toward the Prague government and its greatly diminished territories. It is related that the Sudeten Germans came to der fuehrer and begged for autonomy.

"I'm sorry," was the reply, "but I've already promised that to the Czechs."

Germany plans to complete a domination of Czechoslovakia as if the Fatherland had annexed its small neighbor.

'Bloodless' Conquest.

By going about the matter this way Fuehrer Hitler secures all the advantages of conquest without engaging in war, and at the same time avoids the complications which would follow trying to absorb such a liberty loving people as the Czechs.

And the Prague government is said to be falling swiftly in line with German requirements. There is nothing else Czechoslovaka can do. Gone are the days when she figured on being able to defy Germany through help from France and Britain.

The "Lidove Noviny," official newspaper of the Prague government, has made the position very clear in recent editorials. In one it said:

"Mr. Benes by his resignation is trying to make easier a new orientation of Prague's foreign policy—a new orientation which he himself recommends. Czechoslovakia must adapt itself to the changed situation in central Europe."

Subsequently we get this, which assuredly is a swansong of submission:

"Central Europe doesn't exist any longer. There is nothing left for us to do except go together with Germany. Even in economic respect we must refrain from any combination calculated to bring us in a lineup against Germany."

As a matter of fact, the turning of Czechoslovakia into a virtual dependency is no longer much of a task for the Nazis. The job was all but done for them when their leader achieved his Sudeten coup.

Quite apart from the military situation, many of Czechoslovakia's industries were in the Sudetenland zones ceded to Germany. The smaller state now becomes largely agricultural and the Fatherland is the only country capable of absorbing the products of Czechoslovak soil.

Takes Friendly Attitude.

The German government now is adopting a friendly attitude toward Czechoslovakia. This striking change occurred as soon as Hitler had secured the scalp of President Benes.

There is considerable quiet though unofficial speculation in Berlin as to whether Germany may not obtain still more Czechoslovak territory and cities through infiltration and subsequent plebiscites. There is constant propaganda that Prague really is an old German city. The Germans also covet Brunn and the famous beer brewing cities of Pilsen and Budweis, all of which lie close to the borders of the territories ceded by Czechoslovakia.

I hear from a good source that Pilsen formed the subject of a joke by Minister of Economics Walter Funk while he was in Turkey the other day. In telephoning to a friend in Berlin the minister remarked that Germany couldn't have had a beer drinking member on the international commission considering the Sudeten problem or else the Fatherland would have obtained Pilsen.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Most's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

OIL PAINTINGS OF CLEVELAND ARTIST TO BE DISPLAYED HERE

A collection of oil paintings, several of which have hung in nationally known galleries will be be displayed Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week in the parlors of First Congregational church.

The canvases are the work of Miss May Ames, Cleveland artist, who has long been prominent in American art circles, and who has appeared before Mansfield art groups in the past. She will talk on "Art In Every Day life" at a meeting of the Cosmopolitan club Friday afternoon. The public display of her works is being sponsored here by Mrs. John Conard, 508 Woodward avenue, who studied art with Miss Ames in Cleveland

Miss Ames has been a member of the faculty of the Cleveland School of Art, of which she is a graduate, for more than 18 years and is a member of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors. Three of her paintings were purchased by the Arlington gallery of New York City, and one of her subjects on "Iron Industries" hung in the National gallery at Washington, D. C. for three years. Her collection has been shown at the Detroit Museum.

One of her smaller canvases will be of especial interest to Mansfielders. Last fall, hearing a great deal of the beauties of Richland county hills and late gardens, she came here to do a number of color studies. Before beginning work she drove into the country and passed a brick plant. The klins were operating with fire shooting out of each. The colors of the brick were intensified by the sun. She began work the next day—but it was the brick plant and not the gardens that provided the subject.

The art display will be open to the public for three days with the exception of Friday afternoon.

VOTE ROAD JOB

East Mansfield Land Owners Agree on $9,500 Project.

Owners of property adjoining the Pulver-List road in East Mansfield yesterday voted improvement of the road at a hearing in the county commissioners' office at the courthouse.

Approximately 15 property holders will contribute to the sponsors' share of the cost of improvement while the major part will be paid from WPA funds, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said.

Estimated cost of resurfacing the .7 of a mile of road with stone is $9,500. The road connects route 30 with the Ashland road near the Madison township high school.

County commissioners set Nov. 14 for a hearing on the proposed cleaning and straightening of Cedarfork and Clearfork creeks in Jefferson township. They will view the proposed improvement Nov. 7.

SKATER COVERS 220 MILES

SYDNEY—(U.P.)—Keith Wheeler won a $40 bet by roller skating from Sydney to Newcastle, a distance of 220 miles, in 50 hours. His greatest difficulty, he declared, was dodging automobiles.

Six Pretty Sisters Replace Farm Machines

MAXWELL, Ia.—(AP)—Of course it has pigs, and chickens, and cows, and 213 acres of good Iowa dirt, but the Prichard farm here is mostly famous for its "seven pretty, farming sisters."

Six daughters — the seventh has married and left home—provide the 12 hands that do all the chores and enable Flavius G. Prichard to operate his big farm.

Joan gets corn for the hogs.

There's Billy, too—the son—but he's only 10.

"They're good girls," Dad-Prichard says. "They're not alike, but they're all mighty fine girls."

The girls do all the housework, sewing, cooking, bedmaking, the milking, chicken-raising and some of the plowing and field work.

Their mother died in 1935 of appendicitis. That, says Dad Prichard, was when the girls took over the work.

They like it, too. Joan, 24, for instance, took business college work after she got out of high school and took a job in Des Moines. But she soon returned to the life she loves best—the farm.

Besides Joan and Billy, are Katherine, 16; Ila Mae, 14; Virginia, 22; Lois, 8, and Rosetta, 19. The married daughter is Bernice, 26.

Dad Prichard points proudly to the 352 chickens his girls raised from 356 baby chicks last spring.

Rosetta takes a turn at the woodpile.

GETS JUDGMENT IN 3 TAX SUITS

County Awarded $2,978 in Actions Over Back Taxes; One Involves 74 Lots.

Foreclosure judgments totaling $2,978 in delinquent taxes on properties in Mansfield and Worthington township had been awarded today in common pleas court.

Most of the amount is involved in a judgment against Wilmuth Borders, of New York City, owner of 74 lots in the Ausdale section at the extreme western edge of the city. The county seeks to collect $2,428 from him in delinquent taxes.

A judgment for $411 for taxes lue on 68 acres in Worthington township was obtained by County Treasurer John E. Kolb against Mary R. Russell and others as owners.

The third judgmemt involves $139 due on a lot in the Maple Lake area, Mansfield. The owner is Julia Arnold.

Unless the amounts due in taxes are paid immediately, the properties will be sold at sheriff's sale, Kolb said.

ALIBI FAILS

Newsboys Plead for Scare 'Extra' About Hitler.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Hitler failed as an alibi for two Washington newsies brought into court on charges of crying "extra" while selling a regular edition.

The newsies told Police Court Judge Newman they weren't calling "Extra!" That what they were shouting was "Hitler!"

"They don't sound alike to me," said the judge. "Five dollars."

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1938.

Every wall in old Jerusalem is now a Wailing Wall.

Yes, two sure things in life are death and taxes, but death comes only once.

It's the same old dilemma for the government and all the rest of us. We've either got to bring our income up to our expenses or cut our expenses to fit our income.

"Too many of our so-called reformers," says an indignant conservative, "are wolves in sheeps' clothing." And then again, a good many of them are sheep in wolves' clothing.

Pleasant Names.

A HOLLYWOOD WRITER, making a list of stage and screen celebrities, mentions prominently Helen Hayes, Spencer Tracy, Bette Davis, Fred Astaire, Shirley Temple, Ginger Rogers, Deanna Durbin and others.

Now take the first four names and say them over a few times. They are pleasant names, and they all have exactly the same stressed vowel sounds. Short "e" and long "a" prevail. Perhaps it can be assumed that most Americans find those sounds, as well as the people themselves, pleasant.

"Shirley Temple" almost seems to belong in the same sound-group.

In "Ginger Rogers" and "Deanna Durbin" we find a different principle, that of alliteration, which is much used by poets and agreeable to most people.

Undoubtedly the sound of a name is an important factor in popular success, not only for actors and singers but for other people in public life. It might pay some statesmen to adopt pleasanter names.

There is little agreement on conscious knowledge, however, as to just what qualities make a name pleasant. We like a name without knowing why. Scientific sound-experts might do a favor to the stage and the public, and to prospective mothers, by explaining these things.

More Armament.

AS WAS SAID of old, "men cry peace, peace—but there is no peace." Recent hopes based on the efforts of Britain and France and the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia seem to be melting away, and disillusionment returns. Thus we find the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which at first welcomed the Munich "settlement," saying mournfully:

"Since the dictatorships so easily won their points in central Europe, they are treating the democracies' desire for peace as an admission of weakness. The extension of the Japanese invasion to South China, cutting off Hongkong, the British crown colony through which military supplies have been reaching the armies of General Chiang Kai Shek, is one example of this. The intensification of the revolt in Palestine, an uprising encouraged at least in part by Italy and Germany, is another.

"Hardly had Britain breathed a sigh of relief for its escape from war when the government announced it was redoubling its rearmament pace. Then last week Hitler informed the world that Germany would go ahead with the construction of the world's greatest war machine. France, since Munich, has taken steps to expand its already enormous military establishment. So it goes through every country in Europe."

So it goes also in America, both North and South. Our own government has felt it necessary to embark on a big rearmament program, and the Central and South American countries are either doing likewise, according to their ability, or else snuggling closer to Uncle Sam for safety.

Ohio Poetry Day.

THERE are special days and special weeks galore in this land of ours, many of which are widely publicized in one way and another. But perhaps it has escaped your attention that today is Ohio Poetry day.

It has been made so by a bill passed by the Ohio legislature, and the idea behind it was to pay some sort of tribute to Ohio poets—with emphasis on the living poets, rather than the dead.

The dictionary definition of poetry is "that form of literary expression which expresses lofty thought, feeling or action in beautiful language; composition in verse as opposed to composition in prose."

That may not be a very illuminating or inspiring definition. Most people think poetry is rhyme. But many a classic poem has been written with no rhyme—as witness Longfellow's "Evangeline" and his "Hiawatha."

How to observe Poerty day? Well, the best way would be to read a bit of it, with special emphasis on Ohio poetry, since this is an Ohio day. And of course, it is entirely possible to find poetry written by Ohioans.

Poets are depicted, in the funny cartoons, as persons with long flowing hair and smocks. They aren't, necessarily. Poets have been mistaken for salesmen. They look like everyone else.

But poets have contributed immeasurably to literature through the ages, and with little enough recognition, and that usually after they had died and couldn't appreciate it.

There's sense in the idea of honoring poets while they're with us. The best way, as already has been suggested, is to read their poems.

High School Styles.

YOU never can tell about these youngster. Give them a chance for self-direction, and they are more likely to do something sensible than otherwise. That is what happened when the girls' cabinet in a certain city high school got up a style show.

Girl students were models. The costumes they displayed to the whole school included low-heeled shoes, middies, sweaters and skirts, with just a touch of jewelry. Things which an unsuspecting outsider might have looked for in the show were completely lacking. That is, there were no high-heeled shoes, no fancy dresses, no elaborate rings and necklaces, and no red finger nails.

Teachers explained that the girls themselves started the movement toward common sense, suitability and comfort in clothing. And it has the support of most of the students.

There are always parents who try to keep their daughters sensibly dressed and attractive with the good looks of good health, but they have a hard time fighting the group feeling and follow-the-leader tendencies of high school girls who are daffy about movie stars. Now that the girls themselves choose these same standards, parents may co-operate and rejoice.

Keeping Step

—By PRESTON GROVER

(In the following article, Preston Grover explains why AFL and CIO leaders are feeling an increasing pressure for peace. It is the first of three articles giving the background of labor's family dispute.)

WASHINGTON — The peace between CIO and AFL that the ranks of labor seek is held away by so many obstacles that observers here believe only the most punishing pressure from the president and from other sources will eliminate them.

The most hopeful sign of peace available is that pressure is already developing upon at least four fronts with such rapidity that even the most callous labor leaders can no longer ignore it. It comes from:

1—President Roosevelt, who urged the American Federation of Labor convention at Houston to leave open the door to peace before "reactions" set in to injure the workers.

2—Employers, harassed by "jurisdictional" strikes, who have begun to strike back both openly and through intensified activities of their own business organizations.

3—The shirt-sleeve ranks of labor, which extend little sympathy to the scraps of their distant superiors.

4—Fear of crippling legislation, some of which is being urged upon congress while even more is being pressed upon state legislatures.

Zero Hour Approaches.

A MAJOR trouble confronting those seeking peace is that a virtual deadline has been set. If negotiations toward peace have not made progress before Nov. 14, the CIO will meet at the call of John L. Lewis, already issued, to form a permanent constitutional organization. When that step is taken, it is generally agreed, the difficulties will be multiplied ten fold.

Boiled down to the elements, there are two principal sources of conflict among labor's organizations which have brought on the present break and the continued conflicts. The first, and perhaps lesser, is the ambition of labor leaders, great and small, either to preserve their jobs, or to expand their power and influence. Nothing in that is necessarily foul ball. That ambition prevails from public dog-catcher to private millionaire.

The second, closely interrelated with the first, is the clash between the two types of organization, the "industrial union," encompassing every worker in a plant, both skilled and unskilled, and the "craft union," which seeks members of similar skills, such as carpenters, machinists or electricians

The Mass Union's Power.

CLASHES occur even between craft and craft, as to which group shall have "jurisdiction" over certain workers, but the rise of CIO has intensided the differences mainly between industrial and craft unions. Their bitterness has filled acres of headlines with reports of broken heads, disrupted industry and staggering wage losses.

To the layman such "fights within the family" of labor may seem rank craziness. To him it appears that union members, instead of co-operating in negotiations with employers, fight among themselves, thus weakening their own front and scuttling their employer's business. Yet to the man in overalls the reasons are persuasive enough.

To the old line craft unions the new-arising industrial union appears almost as a nightmare. There are more unskilled workers than skilled, so in any mass union organization the skilled crafters would be outvoted. That extends from the home union to the national convention. Moreover, as the skilled workers see it, they might have to surrender some of their relatively higher scale of pay in order to pry upward the scale of the unskilled broom-wielders or semi-skilled assembly-line operators.

In turn, every such argument of the craft unions is countered by industrial union insistence that the mass labor organization is the more powerful negotiator in certain industries, that the craftsman's wage level will be preserved at the same time his influence helps support the claims of the less skilled.

Those conditions, mingled with long-standing personal and craft jealousies, egged on at times by unwise leadership, form the bedrock of current difficulties.

Editor, News-Journal:

There has been much ado in regard to the parking situation in Mansfield for some time by a certain group of merchants who seem to be inclined to add another tax or penalty on their customers, for the privilege of trading with them.

From observation I would say our parking problems are on a par with other cities the size of Mansfield where municipal parking lots are not available, added costs leave a bad taste with the customer. But, after all, we still have the privilege of trading with merchants out of the meter zone.

Let's stop harping on the parking situation and allow our police force to do real police work. (Your home may be robbed while the officer is chalking your tire.)

Hitler Irks State Department

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Our State Department naturally is not saying so out loud, but it is not much of a secret that it is pretty thoroughly disgusted with Herr Hitler's recent speech warning Britain and France (Britain in particular) to curb their respective "war parties"—or else—. To be sure Uncle Sam's foreign office was none too confident, any of the time, that the Anglo-France-German-Italian dicker at Munich promised anything more than temporary peace. Still, it was hoped that it did promise at least that much. There also were hopes that, before conditions took another turn for the worse, international negotiations might put peace upon a more or less dependably permanent basis. That there would be plenty of American opposition to a Yankee initiative in such a direction was recognized. Nevertheless, it was a policy which had its supporters, too. President Roosevelt had momentary good luck in his appeal to the old world not to go immediately to the mat over Czechoslovakia, which encouraged the theory that his influence might prove effective in the yet longer run.

But this last Hitlerian speech knocked that idea higher than a kite.

Not Altogether Illogical.

Adolf's reasoning is not altogether illogical, either.

His argument was that he and Benito Mussolini prefer peace, which doubtless is true, if they can get all they want without fighting for it. And, being dictators, what they dictate "goes."

But Britain and France, he pointed out, being democracies, have changeable governments. Right now they have governments which seem disposed to bow to his and Benito's demands. However, they may have elections almost any day, bringing uglier British and French governments into power. He and Benito, says Adolf, must be prepared for this contingency.

Duce More Discreet.

Hitler, substantially, has defied the world. Mussolini has been more discreet. He's a threatening consideration, but he hasn't bellowed it, as Hitler has. He has made Italy something of a tail to Germany's kite. There's the possibility that he may detach Italy from the German kite at the opportune minute. Hitler evidently doesn't think so, but maybe he's fooled.

It's awkward for Uncle Sam, anyway.

If Europe gets to fighting, Japan will try to grab everything in sight in the Far East—British Hong Kong, Singapore, possibly Australia, New Zealand, and even India; French China; Dutch East India; Portuguese Macao. Possibly the Philippines. We never could stand that.

Talk of American neutrality!

The fuehrer didn't mention the United States. All the same, by indirection, he slammed us likewise, as another unreliable democracy.

Well, in a way, he's right. A dictator knows what his plans are, and can stick to them, unless he's bumped off—and he doesn't take that possibility into account. A democracy can change its course unexpectedly, completely altering its preceding administration's policies.

For that matter, so can a dictator renege on his bargains. I don't believe that any diplomat trusts a word that Hitler or Mussolini say (I doubt that they sincerely trust one another).

Yet I can see why a dictator especially distrusts a changing democracy.

One can't but wonder if Mussolini isn't a bit afraid of Hitler.

Germany is immensely more powerful than Italy. Just now the former needs the latter's help. If, combined, they get what they jointly want, won't Germany insist on more than the lion's share?

Mussolini, diplomats surmise, must foresee it. He is regarded as no more scrupulous but as far more intelligent than the fuehrer.

Health Advice

Circulatory System, It's Functions.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE BLOOD gets blamed for a great many things of which it is entirely innocent. One hears of poor blood, thin blood and bad blood, and complaints are made that "My blood is acid". And so on and so on.

But the fact is that the blood visits all the tissues and part of the body, partakes and shares in all their qualities. If the blood is "poor", then the tissues are also poor, and it may well be that the poorness of the tissues is the cause of the poorness of the blood.

When it comes to the term "bad blood", that must refer to hereditary qualities; these are more inherent in the nervous system than in the blood.

Simply a Tissue.

The blood is simply a tissue like any other tissue. It has the unique distinction that it touches every other tissue in the body. That is its purpose and that is why it is a liquid tissue. It touches all the tissues with astonishing rapidity and frequency.

If it were possible to tag a single particle of blood, it probably would be found that it visits every part of the body several thousand times an hour, and it gets from one end of the body to the other in seconds rather than minutes. As proof of this, it is a familiar fact to the practicing physician that when he is giving an injection in the vein of the arm of a patient—a solution of arsenic, for instance—before he has injected as much as a quarter of the solution, the patient will complain of a metallic arsenic taste in the mouth.

In considering the functions of the various systems of the body during the last few weeks, we started out with the digestive system because that prepares the energy-producing substances for consumption. Then, in order to produce energy, the food must be oxidized and to furnish oxygen is the function of the respiratory system.

Function of Blood.

To carry these substances to the tissues is the function of the blood. It is naturally an extremely complex tissue, containing from time to time all sorts of chemicals. It varies a good deal in composition from time to time. I have seen blood drawn from the arm after a meal that looked like milk, so loaded with fat particles was it—a condition called lipemia.

Essentially, the blood consists of a clear protein or serum fluid of extreme complexity, called the plasma. In this float the blood cells; one kind, the red cells, whose essential function it is to carry oxygen to the tissues, and the other kind, the white cells, which repel invasion and also probably carry chemicals to and fro.

A Farmer's Diary

Husking Corn.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A HEAVY FROST was on the ground. The stiffened leaves of plantain cracked and broke in two as I stepped upon them. The black walnut trees were dropping their leaves in the silent, chilly air, as I went on my way to my neighbor's corn field.

For several days he had been husking, and looking westward along the upper border, I saw more than twenty golden piles glistening in the morning sun.

It had rained recently and the fodder was in excellent condition. I cut a number of twine strings of even length and tied them to my belt, a convenient place to reach them when binding sheaves.

A monstrous shock stood like a challenge. I walked around it. On the western side, frost and chunks of ice were untouched by sun or wind. I found I could not push the whole shock over, so I took it piecemeal, and husked out each part. I had four heaping baskets of golden corn. I tied the fodder and went to another shock.

The autumn sun shone warm. The wind blew from the south. The stalks grew brash and rattled heavily. My hands and feet were not so cold as at first.

How pleasant, I thought, to sit almost concealed here in this shock, to rip the pale, dry husks apart and throw long, yellow ears into a growing heap. How fine to be alone, to dream or think aloud out in an open field, where tall woodlands, and crimson brambles, and lovely speckled asters are my mute companions. I heard the bob white's call, the scream of a jay, the squeak of a field mouse.

I watched the autumn haze gather slowly and make dim misty outline of the distant hills and softly clothe the nearby valley in a light, translucent garment. Perhaps I did not husk as much corn as I might have done, but the hours were rich and golden as the corn itself. I will husk again, if the days are not too cold.

Listen, World!

Why's Your Husband's Secretary Your Rival, Lady?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"Has every business or professional man's wife a rival in her husband's secretary?" asks a distracted matron, plainly echoing the deep, dark suspicions of endless sisters.

Yes, ma'am, she has—but not in the way you think.

Amazing what grip this "Office Wife" tradition has on the female mind—and even more amazing the revolting depths to which otherwise intelligent and refined women will let their imaginations go on the subject. Ladies who are models of delicacy in every other department of life will frankly harbor notions of this subject which would shame an honest gutter. From dishwasher to duchess, the female sex is united in the belief that every good-looking stenographer is a home-wrecker . . . and every office a hell hole, when no one's looking.

A thrilling idea, girls—and I hate to disillusion you. But the simple truth is—we femmes aren't half as much a Treat or Temptation to the Big Boys as we like to think we are! The average male finds scores of subjects in his business program which are far more exciting than Somebody's Ankle. And, by the same token, most clever gals infinitely prefer their own Boy Friends to the somewhat shop-worn articles which represents your taste.

And yet it is tragically true that the Smart Stenog is always a major menace to the Dear Little Woman At Home. But this isn't because Propinquity spells Petting . . . and Tillie the Toiler is a hussy at heart.

It's because the average business girl is usually an infinitely more skillful worker than the sheltered wife . . . takes her job far more seriously . . . and turns out a performance which makes the Missis' domestic technique look like a ten-day beard!

Stop your snivelling, sisters, and use the good old bean for a minute. For eight hours each day your husbands work with young women whose every act is a miracle of efficiency. This is not merely a matter of training . . . it is much more a matter of attitude. The Working Girl needs her job. She enjoys no such demoralizing security as a wife. If she is to eat, she must both like her job and work at it. Or else.

It follows, therefore, that she gives the slickest service in her power. Despite small salary and scant time for personal attention . . . despite the fact she is often a housekeeper as well as an office worker . . . she appears on the dot, exquisitely groomed, alert and cheerful. The sleek simplicity of her clothes is reflected in the silky smoothness of her service. Her voice is low . . . her conversation controlled . . . her motions beautifully coordinated . . . her output flawless. Above all, she is constantly striving to beat her own record.

"Well, why shouldn't she be like that?" some wife sniffs scornfully. "That's her job . . . she's paid to be like that."

Yes, indeed. But has it never occurred to you that housekeeping is also YOUR job . . . that YOU, to, are expected to give a trained performance and are receiving payment for the same? This angle may have escaped you—but it hasn't, I assure, you escaped your husband! Granted that marriage is based on love rather than cold cash. Granted, too, that there are distractions and interruptions in a household schedule which don't exist in an office. Nevertheless a job is a job, whether it wears a pay check or a wedding ring.

If the secretary can budget her energy, schedule her time, why can't the wife? If a secretary wouldn't dream of starting her day in a dirty house coat . . . or of gabbing over the phone for an hour with Maybelle . . . or of "leaving the work go" while she read that thrilling serial" . . . Why for Pete's sake should you, Lady?

And why should you be furious and heart-broken if your husband, thereupon, makes some mighty unflattering comparisons between the partner at the office and the partner in the home?

Paste this on your mirror, sweetheart—if every wife spent one-third as much time learning to do her job and to control her emotions as she does in suspecting her husband and being sorry for herself, the divorce rate would drop so fast you couldn't see it for laughs!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff: Thornton Wilder thinks the world's two lovellest cities are Vienna and Chicago, in that order. He placed Vienna first because it has a greater typographical charm, which is to say, a more natural beauty . . . Elsa Lancaster, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Laughton, describes Lake Michigan as "a body of water about the size of England."

Patricia Ellis was hostess at a recent Mickey Mouse birthday party, at which the people wore costumes, and looked real domestic . . . She cut the birthday cake . . . AMONG the many who listened with enthusiasm to the Met opera's plans for the coming year was a honey-haired girl from Marshall, Texas, whose aspirations and talents lie definitely in the Met's direction. She is Lucia Graeser, 24, and already she has appeared on programs with such noted stars as Lauritz Melchoir, Ezio Pinza, Gertrude Lawrence, Walter Hampden, Cornelia Otis Skinner, and others. Has a yen for Italian opera and is studying Italian now . . . One of her most enthusiastic boosters is Mr. Edward Johnson, general manager of the Met.

Sabu, the elephant boy, who wears a turban wound tightly about his head, has departed for far off India, but before he left they took him to see a musical comedy. Midway during the first act a late comer slipped into his seat directly behind Sabu, touched him on the shoulder, and remarked: "Lady, would you please remove your hat—I can't see" . . . Sabu yanked off his turban, but he was some peeved.

Marc Connolly wants Leslie Howard to play the lead in his new play "Land of the Living," but no acceptance by Howard has been received. Two years ago, you will remember, Howard's "Hamlet" was so shabbily received by the critics that he intimates he might be through with Broadway forever. The new play, incidentally, is said to have "social significance," although the action takes place during the Colonial period.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1938.

Yes, two sure things in life are death and taxes, but death comes only once.

It's the same old dilemma for the government and all the rest of us. We've either got to bring our income up to our expenses or cut our expenses to fit our income.

"Too many of our so-called reformers," says an indignant conservative, "are wolves in sheeps' clothing." And then again, a good many of them are sheep in wolves' clothing.

Pleasant Names.

A HOLLYWOOD WRITER, making a list of stage and screen celebrities, mentions prominently Helen Hayes, Spencer Tracy, Bette Davis, Fred Astaire, Shirley Temple, Ginger Rogers, Deanna Durbin and others.

Now take the first four names and say them over a few times. They are pleasant names, and they all have exactly the same stressed vowel sounds. Short "e" and long "a" prevail. Perhaps it can be assumed that most Americans find those sounds, as well as the people themselves, pleasant.

"Shirley Temple" almost seems to belong in the same sound-group.

In "Ginger Rogers" and "Deanna Durbin" we find a different principle, that of alliteration, which is much used by poets and agreeable to most people.

Undoubtedly the sound of a name is an important factor in popular success, not only for actors and singers but for other people in public life. It might pay some statesmen to adopt pleasanter names.

There is little agreement on conscious knowledge, however, as to just what qualities make a name pleasant. We like a name without knowing why. Scientific sound-experts might do a favor to the stage and the public, and to prospective mothers, by explaining these things.

More Armament.

AS WAS SAID of old, "men cry peace, peace—but there is no peace." Recent hopes based on the efforts of Britain and France and the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia seem to be melting away, and disillusionment returns. Thus we find the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which at first welcomed the Munich "settlement," saying mournfully:

"Since the dictatorships so easily won their points in central Europe, they are treating the democracies' desire for peace as an admission of weakness. The extension of the Japanese invasion to South China, cutting off Hongkong, the British crown colony through which military supplies have been reaching the armies of General Chiang Kai Shek, is one example of this. The intensification of the revolt in Palestine, an uprising encouraged at least in part by Italy and Germany, is another.

"Hardly had Britain breathed a sigh of relief for its escape from war when the government announced it was redoubling its rearmament pace. Then last week Hitler informed the world that Germany would go ahead with the construction of the world's greatest war machine. France, since Munich, has taken steps to expand its already enormous military establishment. So it goes through every country in Europe."

So it goes also in America, both North and South. Our own government has felt it necessary to embark on a big rearmament program, and the Central and South American countries are either doing likewise, according to their ability, or else snuggling closer to Uncle Sam for safety.

Ohio Poetry Day.

THERE are special days and special weeks galore in this land of ours, many of which are widely publicized in one way and another. But perhaps it has escaped your attention that today is Ohio Poetry day.

It has been made so by a bill passed by the Ohio legislature, and the idea behind it was to pay some sort of tribute to Ohio poets—with emphasis on the living poets, rather than the dead.

The dictionary definition of poetry is "that form of literary expression which expresses lofty thought, feeling or action in beautiful language; composition in verse as opposed to composition in prose."

That may not be a very illuminating or inspiring definition. Most people think poetry is rhyme. But many a classic poem has been written with no rhyme—as witness Longfellow's "Evangeline" and his "Hiawatha."

How to observe Poerty day? Well, the best way would be to read a bit of it, with special emphasis on Ohio poetry, since this is an Ohio day. And of course, it is entirely possible to find poetry written by Ohioans.

Poets are depicted, in the funny cartoons, as persons with long flowing hair and smocks. They aren't, necessarily. Poets have been mistaken for salesmen. They look like everyone else.

But poets have contributed immeasurably to literature through the ages, and with little enough recognition, and that usually after they had died and couldn't appreciate it.

There's sense in the idea of honoring poets while they're with us. The best way, as already has been suggested, is to read their poems.

High School Styles.

YOU never can tell about these youngster. Give them a chance for self-direction, and they are more likely to do something sensible than otherwise. That is what happened when the girls' cabinet in a certain city high school got up a style show.

Girl students were models. The costumes they displayed to the whole school included low-heeled shoes, middies, sweaters and skirts, with just a touch of jewelry. Things which an unsuspecting outsider might have looked for in the show were completely lacking. That is, there were no high-heeled shoes, no fancy dresses, no elaborate rings and necklaces, and no red finger nails.

Teachers explained that the girls themselves started the movement toward common sense, suitability and comfort in clothing. And it has the support of most of the students.

There are always parents who try to keep their daughters sensibly dressed and attractive with the good looks of good health, but they have a hard time fighting the group feeling and follow-the-leader tendencies of high school girls who are daffy about movie stars. Now that the girls themselves choose these same standards, parents may co-operate and rejoice.

Keeping Step

—By PRESTON GROVER

(In the following article, Preston Grover explains why AFL and CIO leaders are feeling an increasing pressure for peace. It is the first of three articles giving the background of labor's family dispute.)

WASHINGTON — The peace between CIO and AFL that the ranks of labor seek is held away by so many obstacles that observers here believe only the most punishing pressure from the president and from other sources will eliminate them.

The most hopeful sign of peace available is that pressure is already developing upon at least four fronts with such rapidity that even the most callous labor leaders can no longer ignore it. It comes from:

1—President Roosevelt, who urged the American Federation of Labor convention at Houston to leave open the door to peace before "reactions" set in to injure the workers.

2—Employers, harassed by "jurisdictional" strikes, who have begun to strike back both openly and through intensified activities of their own business organizations.

3—The shirt-sleeve ranks of labor, which extend little sympathy to the scraps of their distant superiors.

4—Fear of crippling legislation, some of which is being urged upon congress while even more is being pressed upon state legislatures.

Zero Hour Approaches.

A MAJOR trouble confronting those seeking peace is that a virtual deadline has been set. If negotiations toward peace have not made progress before Nov. 14, the CIO will meet at the call of John L. Lewis, already issued, to form a permanent constitutional organization. When that step is taken, it is generally agreed, the difficulties will be multiplied ten fold.

Boiled down to the elements, there are two principal sources of conflict among labor's organizations which have brought on the present break and the continued conflicts. The first, and perhaps lesser, is the ambition of labor leaders, great and small, either to preserve their jobs, or to expand their power and influence. Nothing in that is necessarily foul ball. That ambition prevails from public dog-catcher to private millionaire.

The second, closely interrelated with the first, is the clash between the two types of organization, the "industrial union," encompassing every worker in a plant, both skilled and unskilled, and the "craft union," which seeks members of similar skills, such as carpenters, machinists or electricians.

The Mass Union's Power.

CLASHES occur even between craft and craft, as to which group shall have "jurisdiction" over certain workers, but the rise of CIO has intensided the differences mainly between industrial and craft unions. Their bitterness has filled acres of headlines with reports of broken heads, disrupted industry and staggering wage losses.

To the layman such "fights within the family" of labor may seem rank craziness. To him it appears that union members, instead of co-operating in negotiations with employers, fight among themselves, thus weakening their own front and scuttling their employer's business. Yet to the man in overalls the reasons are persuasive enough.

To the old line craft unions the new-arising industrial union appears almost as a nightmare. There are more unskilled workers than skilled, so in any mass union organization the skilled crafters would be outvoted. That extends from the home union to the national convention. Moreover, as the skilled workers see it, they might have to surrender some of their relatively higher scale of pay in order to pry upward the scale of the unskilled broom-wielders or semi-skilled assembly-line operators.

In turn, every such argument of the craft unions is countered by industrial union insistence that the mass labor organization is the more powerful negotiator in certain industries, that the craftsman's wage level will be preserved at the same time his influence helps support the claims of the less skilled.

Those conditions, mingled with long-standing personal and craft jealousies, egged on at times by unwise leadership, form the bedrock of current difficulties.

Editor, News-Journal:

There has been much ado in regard to the parking situation in Mansfield for some time by a certain group of merchants who seem to be inclined to add another tax or penalty on their customers, for the privilege of trading with them.

From observation I would say our parking problems are on a par with other cities the size of Mansfield where municipal parking lots are not available, added costs leave a bad taste with the customer. But, after all, we still have the privilege of trading with merchants out of the meter zone.

Let's stop harping on the parking situation and allow our police force to do real police work. (Your home may be robbed while the officer is chalking your tire.)

Hitler Irks State Department

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Our State Department naturally is not saying so out loud, but it is not much of a secret that it is pretty thoroughly disgusted with Herr Hitler's recent speech warning Britain and France (Britain in particular) to curb their respective "war parties"—or else—. To be sure Uncle Sam's foreign office was none too confident, any of the time, that the Anglo-France-German-Italian dicker at Munich promised anything more than temporary peace. Still, it was hoped that it did promise at least that much. There also were hopes that, before conditions took another turn for the worse, international negotiations might put peace upon a more or less dependably permanent basis. That there would be plenty of American opposition to a Yankee initiative in such a direction was recognized. Nevertheless, it was a policy which had its supporters, too. President Roosevelt had momentary good luck in his appeal to the old world not to go immediately to the mat over Czechoslovakia, which encouraged the theory that his influence might prove effective in the yet longer run.

But this last Hitlerian speech knocked that idea higher than a kite.

Not Altogether Illogical.

Adolf's reasoning is not altogether illogical, either.

His argument was that he and Benito Mussolini prefer peace, which doubtless is true, if they can get all they want without fighting for it. And, being dictators, what they dictate "goes."

But Britain and France, he pointed out, being democracies, have changeable governments. Right now they have governments which seem disposed to bow to his and Benito's demands. However, they may have elections almost any day, bringing uglier British and French governments into power. He and Benito, says Adolf, must be prepared for this contingency.

Duce More Discreet.

Hitler, substantially, has defied the world. Mussolini has been more discreet. He's a threatening consideration, but he hasn't bellowed it, as Hitler has. He has made Italy something of a tail to Germany's kite. There's the possibility that he may detach Italy from the German kite at the opportune minute. Hitler evidently doesn't think so, but maybe he's fooled.

It's awkward for Uncle Sam, anyway.

If Europe gets to fighting, Japan will try to grab everything in sight in the Far East—British Hong Kong, Singapore, possibly Australia, New Zealand, and even India; French China; Dutch East India; Portuguese Macao. Possibly the Philippines. We never could stand that.

Talk of American neutrality!

The fuehrer didn't mention the United States. All the same, by indirection, he slammed us likewise, as another unreliable democracy.

Well, in a way, he's right. A dictator knows what his plans are, and can stick to them, unless he's bumped off—and he doesn't take that possibility into account. A democracy can change its course unexpectedly, completely altering its preceding administration's policies.

For that matter, so can a dictator renege on his bargains. I don't believe that any diplomat trusts a word that Hitler or Mussolini say (I doubt that they sincerely trust one another).

Yet I can see why a dictator especially distrusts a changing democracy.

One can't but wonder if Mussolini isn't a bit afraid of Hitler.

Germany is immensely more powerful than Italy. Just now the former needs the latter's help. If, combined, they get what they jointly want, won't Germany insist on more than the lion's share?

Mussolini, diplomats surmise, must foresee it. He is regarded as no more scrupulous but as far more intelligent than the fuehrer.

Health Advice

Circulatory System, It's Functions.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE BLOOD gets blamed for a great many things of which it is entirely innocent. One hears of poor blood, thin blood and bad blood, and complaints are made that "My blood is acid". And so on and so on.

But the fact is that the blood visits all the tissues and part of the body, partakes and shares in all their qualities. If the blood is "poor", then the tissues are also poor, and it may well be that the poorness of the tissues is the cause of the poorness of the blood.

When it comes to the term "bad blood", that must refer to hereditary qualities; these are more inherent in the nervous system than in the blood.

Simply a Tissue.

The blood is simply a tissue like any other tissue. It has the unique distinction that it touches every other tissue in the body. That is its purpose and that is why it is a liquid tissue. It touches all the tissues with astonishing rapidity and frequency.

If it were possible to tag a single particle of blood, it probably would be found that it visits every part of the body several thousand times an hour, and it gets from one end of the body to the other in seconds rather than minutes. As proof of this, it is a familiar fact to the practicing physician that when he is giving an injection in the vein of the arm of a patient—a solution of arsenic, for instance—before he has injected as much as a quarter of the solution, the patient will complain of a metallic arsenic taste in the mouth.

In considering the functions of the various systems of the body during the last few weeks, we started out with the digestive system because that prepares the energy-producing substances for consumption. Then, in order to produce energy, the food must be oxidized and to furnish oxygen is the function of the respiratory system.

Function of Blood.

To carry these substances to the tissues is the function of the blood. It is naturally an extremely complex tissue, containing from time to time all sorts of chemicals. It varies a good deal in composition from time to time. I have seen blood drawn from the arm after a meal that looked like milk, so loaded with fat particles was it—a condition called lipemia.

Essentially, the blood consists of a clear protein or serum fluid of extreme complexity, called the plasma. In this float the blood cells; one kind, the red cells, whose essential function it is to carry oxygen to the tissues, and the other kind, the white cells, which repel invasion and also probably carry chemicals to and fro.

A Farmer's Diary

Husking Corn.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A HEAVY FROST was on the ground. The stiffened leaves of plantain cracked and broke in two as I stepped upon them. The black walnut trees were dropping their leaves in the silent, chilly air, as I went on my way to my neighbor's corn field.

For several days he had been husking, and looking westward along the upper border, I saw more than twenty golden piles glistening in the morning sun.

It had rained recently and the fodder was in excellent condition. I cut a number of twine strings of even length and tied them to my belt, a convenient place to reach them when binding sheaves.

A monstrous shock stood like a challenge. I walked around it. On the western side, frost and chunks of ice were untouched by sun or wind. I found I could not push the whole shock over, so I took it piecemeal, and husked out each part. I had four heaping baskets of golden corn. I tied the fodder and went to another shock.

The autumn sun shone warm. The wind blew from the south. The stalks grew brash and rattled heavily. My hands and feet were not so cold as at first.

How pleasant, I thought, to sit almost concealed here in this shock, to rip the pale, dry husks apart and throw long, yellow ears into a growing heap. How fine to be alone, to dream or think aloud out in an open field, where tall woodlands, and crimson brambles, and lovely speckeled asters are my mute companions. I heard the bob white's call, the scream of a jay, the squeak of a field mouse.

I watched the autumn haze gather slowly and make dim misty outline of the distant hills and softly clothe the nearby valley in a light, translucent garment. Perhaps I did not husk as much corn as I might have done, but the hours were rich and golden as the corn itself. I will husk again, if the days are not too cold.

Listen, World!

—Why's Your Husband's Secretary Your Rival, Lady?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"Has every business or professional man's wife a rival in her husband's secretary?" asks a distracted matron, plainly echoing the deep, dark suspicions of endless sisters.

Yes, ma'am, she has—but not in the way you think.

Amazing what grip this "Office Wife" tradition has on the female mind—and even more amazing the revolting depths to which otherwise intelligent and refined women will let their imaginations go on the subject. Ladies who are models of delicacy in every other department of life will frankly harbor notions of this subject which would shame an honest gutter. From dishwasher to duchess, the female sex is united in the belief that every good-looking stenographer is a home-wrecker . . . and every office a hell hole, when no one's looking.

A thrilling idea, girls—and I hate to disillusion you. But the simple truth is—we femmes aren't half as much a Treat or Temptation to the Big Boys as we like to think we are! The average male finds scores of subjects in his business program which are far more exciting than Somebody's Ankle. And, by the same token, most clever gals infinitely prefer their own Boy Friends to the somewhat shop-worn articles which represents your taste.

And yet it is tragically true that the Smart Stenog is always a major menace to the Dear Little Woman At Home. But this isn't because Propinquity spells Petting . . . and Tillie the Toiler is a hussy at heart.

It's because the average business girl is usually an infinitely more skillful worker than the sheltered wife . . . takes her job far more seriously . . . and turns out a performance which makes the Missis' domestic technique look like a ten-day beard!

Stop your snivelling, sisters, and use the good old bean for a minute. For eight hours each day your husbands work with young women whose every act is a miracle of efficiency. This is not merely a matter of training . . . it is much more a matter of attitude. The Working Girl needs her job. She enjoys no such demoralizing security as a wife. If she is to eat, she must both like her job and work at it. Or else.

It follows, therefore, that she gives the slickest service in her power. Despite small salary and scant time for personal attention . . . despite the fact she is often a housekeeper as well as an office worker . . . she appears on the dot, exquisitely groomed, alert and cheerful. The sleek simplicity of her clothes is reflected in the silky smoothness of her service. Her voice is low . . . her conversation controlled . . . her motions beautifully coordinated . . . her output flawless. Above all, she is constantly striving to beat her own record.

"Well, why shouldn't she be like that?" some wife sniffs scornfully. "That's her job . . . she's paid to be like that."

Yes, indeed. But has it never occurred to you that housekeeping is also YOUR job . . . that YOU, to, are expected to give a trained performance and are receiving payment for the same? This angle may have escaped you—but it hasn't, I assure, you escaped your husband! Granted that marriage is based on love rather than cold cash. Granted, too, that there are distractions and interruptions in a household schedule which don't exist in an office. Nevertheless a job is a job, whether it wears a pay check or a wedding ring.

If the secretary can budget her energy, schedule her time, why can't the wife? If a secretary wouldn't dream of starting her day in a dirty house coat . . . or of gabbing over the phone for an hour with Maybelle . . . or of "leaving the work go" while she read that thrilling serial" . . . Why for Pete's sake should you, Lady?

And why should you be furious and heart-broken if your husband, thereupon, makes some mighty unflattering comparisons between the partner at the office and the partner in the home?

Paste this on your mirror, sweetheart — if every wife spent one-third as much time learning to do her job and to control her emotions as she does in suspecting her husband and being sorry for herself, the divorce rate would drop so fast you couldn't see it for laughs!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff: Thornton Wilder thinks the world's two lovellest cities are Vienna and Chicago, in that order. He placed Vienna first because it has a greater typographical charm, which is to say, a more natural beauty . . . Elsa Lancaster, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Laughton, describes Lake Michigan as "a body of water about the size of England."

Patricia Ellis was hostess at a recent Mickey Mouse birthday party, at which the people wore costumes, and looked real domestic . . . She cut the birthday cake . . . It's the "hoboe" that interests Joe Rines at the moment . . . This band leader crossed a violin with an oboe and wound up with something you've never seen before — hence the name "hoboe." . . . You've got a lot of nerve to presume to improve on the old masters," gibed an onlooker . . . "What about that guy Burbank?" shot back Rines, "he crossed a lemon with an orange and got a grapefruit."

AMONG the many who listened with enthusiasm to the Met opera's plans for the coming year was a honey-haired girl from Marshall, Texas, whose aspirations and talents lie definitely in the Met's direction. She is Lucia Graeser, 24, and already she has appeared on programs with such noted stars as Lauritz Melchoir, Ezio Pinza, Gertrude Lawrence, Walter Hampden, Cornelia Otis Skinner, and others. Has a yen for Italian opera and is studying Italian now . . . One of her most enthusiastic boosters is Mr. Edward Johnson, general manager of the Met.

Sabu, the elephant boy, who wears a turban wound tightly about his head, has departed for far off India, but before he left they took him to see a musical comedy. Midway during the first act a late comer slipped into his seat directly behind Sabu, touched him on the shoulder, and remarked: "Lady, would you please remove your hat—I can't see" . . . Sabu yanked off his turban, but he was some peeved.

Marc Connolly wants Leslie Howard to play the lead in his new play "Land of the Living," but no acceptance by Howard has been received. Two years ago, you will remember, Howard's "Hamlet" was so shabbily received by the critics that he intimates he might be through with Broadway forever. The new play, incidentally, is said to have "social significance," although the action takes place during the Colonial period.

Norma Shearer is a dainty but persistent diner . . . Hollywood reporters inform us that twice daily during film production (aside from meals) the actress has hot soup served her on the set . . . CLAIMS LABOR ACT BOLSTERS 'RED' STRENGTH

Former Communist Testifies Law Keeps Employers From Firing Party Members.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Wagner Labor Relations act has strengthened the hand of communism in the labor movement by preventing employers from firing known Communist party members, Clyde Morrow, a Detroit ex-communist testified today before the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

He said:

"Until four years ago the Communist party was very weak in the labor movement of this country. Police could raid Communist homes, seize their party cards, and employers could find them.

"Now the National Labor Relations board, the Wagner act and the present setup make it almost impossible for a man to be fired for being a known revolutionary. The Communists always protect themselves with the cloak of a union card and claim they were discharged for union activities."

Blamed For 'Sit-Downs'.

Morrow was one of a score of Michigan witnesses called by the committee who have testified that the sit-down strikes which paralyzed the automobile industry last year were conceived and engineered by actual Communists.

The witness, who was a Communist himself for more than four years and who has recently been supplying information to the Americanization committee of the American Legion, credited Homer Martin, international president of the United Automobile Workers, a CIO affiliate, with attempting to rid the union of Communists.

But Morrow said, Martin hired Communists as UAW organizers when the union was first being formed "because of their familiarity with organization tactics and their acquaintance among Detroit workers."

The witness testified further that the first organizer ever hired by Martin for the UAW was John Anderson, 1934 candidate for the governor of Michigan on the Communist party ticket. Others named as having been hired by Martin included Emil Mazey, William Knowles and Paul Kirk. Morrow said there were others, but he did not name them.

Anderson has since been discharged by Martin as have others, Morrow told the committee.

Martin had been subpoenaed to testify before the committee today, but Chairman Martin Dies (D) Texas, was notified late yesterday that the CIO leader was ill and could not appear until next week.

"every item of the original 1937 program would be enacted into law by July 1, 1939."

"The president has stated his intention of reintroducing the reorganization bill, and simple amendments on the warge-hour bill and the farm bill will restore them to their original power," he said.

Bricker In Cleveland.

Speaking at Cleveland yesterday, John W. Bricker, Republican gubernatorial nominee, labelled as "Democratic scandalmongering" today an assertion that an "unholy alliance" exists between Bricker and Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The Republican candidate appeared with Congressman Bruce Barton of New York at a rally of Young Republican clubs here.

"The scandalmongers are at work spreading false rumors," said Bricker of Sawyer's statement that he and Davey had entered into a patronage deal. "There is no need to deny them, for the Democrats are telling them so often they are coming to believe them themselves."

Barton credited the Democratic party with inaugurating "necessary reforms," but he declared, "it always winds up with a whale of a lot of people out of work."

He charged that the Roosevelt administration suffers from lack of an effective minority in congress.

"The country would be better off," he continued, "if instead of 90 Republicans there were 190 in the next congress."

LETS CONTRACT ON $72,940 BID

Shelby PWA Water Plant Project Awarded to Cleveland Construction Firm.

SHELBY—The Curro Construction company of Cleveland today had been named general contractors for the $100,000 PWA addition and improvements to the municipal water plant. The company offered the low bid of the eight bidders with $72,940.36.

Also accepted was the low bid of $23,465 from the Chicago Bridge and Iron company of Chicago for the water storage tower to be constructed in connection with the improvements. The tower will be located on Mohican street.

Construction of the water tower, which will hold a 300,000-gallon storage tank to raise the water pressure in the downtown fire area, was started this morning by the company. Officials of the Cleveland firm said that about 75 men would be employed on the four-month project.

Included in the improvements will be a water softener unit in the addition at the plant costing approximately $45,000. The $100,000 project received approval from PWA officials at Washington last month.

The project is set up so that the city, as sponsor, pays $55,000 or 55 per cent of the cost of the project, while the federal government gives grants of $45,000 or 45 per cent of the cost.

While ground was broken today on the water company project, city officials today were still tabulating bids for the $200,000 addition and improvements to the municipal electric company. Bids were opened Wednesday.

NEWCOMERS TO DOMINATE CAST OF INITIAL COMMUNITY PLAY

When "The Queen's Husband" is presented by the Mansfield Community Players at Senior High school auditorium Nov. 29, a cast made up largely of newcomers will enact the lively Robert Sherwood comedy.

None of the players in the first presentation of the season are familiar to Mansfield audiences with the exception of Ferd Lovkovich who has appeared in many shows.

There are only two major roles in the play for women, and these are played by Mrs. Joseph Montgomery, as the queen, and Miss Sanchon Cutter as the princess. Mrs. Montgomery had a minor role in "Kind Lady."

The leading role, that of King Eric, the queen's husband, is being rehearsed by Linley Smith, who has not been seen with the Players for several years, but who played in "Sun Up" years ago and in "The Truth About Blaydes," another early Players show. Rhuland Isaly, as Dr. Fellman, is well known to Players audiences.

Daniel Reese, who had a minor role in "First Lady," will be seen as Phipps in the new play. Newcomers who are making their initial bows in "The Queen's Husband," and their characters, are: Richard Nixon as Frederic, who falls in love with the princess; Burr Wade as Lord Birten; Ken Woodman as Major Bleat; William Schauck as Prince William; Don Stehle (who was 'atmosphere' in "The Thirteenth Chair"), as Laker; and Nellie Helberg as mistress of the wardrobe. There will be a number of atmosphere roles as yet unassigned.

Season tickets for the three plays are being sold by the Women's Association of First Congregational church.

'PERFECT' MATE GOES ON STAND

Tells How He Killed Man Who Won Wife Away From Him With Poetry, Music.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Rudolph Sikora, 31, once a "perfect" husband, described on the witness stand today how he killed the man who, with talk of culture, poetry and music, wooed and won his pretty wife, Margaret, 22.

He is on trial before a jury of 11 husbands and a bachelor on a charge of having murdered Edward Solomon, 35, an accountant. Sikora's attorney contend it was not murder, but a justifiable slaying under the "unwritten law." He shot Solomon on a street corner early in the morning of Aug. 22. It was the same corner where he had met Solomon 10 days earlier and warned him to "stay away from my wife."

The case may be given to the jury late today, tomorrow at the latest.

Sikora was calm and held his head proudly yesterday as he told the jury he first learned his wife no longer cared for him while they were talking in bed one July night this year. At that time, he said, he knew nothing of the rival who had supplanted him in her affections.

"All she told me," he said, "was that she wanted to call it quits."

Mrs. Sikora, who is aiding the state in its effort to send him to the electric chair, testified Wednesday that she loved Solomon and that theirs was a beautiful romance, not the flirtation of a conniving wife as the defense had charged.

ROOSEVELT IN BID TO REVIVE REORGANIZATION

Congress Should Delegate Power to Permit Changes, President Declares.

(By International News Service)

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Congress should delegate to the administration authority to reorganize the federal government, reserving the veto power over all changes, President Roosevelt declared today.

The president, in serving notice that he intended to continue his fight for reorganization, pointed out that congress had delegated such authority to the judicial branch of government at the last session.

A perfect analogy exists between the authority delegated to the judicial branch and the authority he is seeking, the president said.

Draft Proposals.

At the behest of the president and Attorney General Cummings, congress set up a committee of federal judges to reorganize judicial practices and procedure. This committee laid before congress last spring a drastic and important series of rules for simplification and standardization. Under the terms of the act creating the committee, the reform procedure became effective Oct. 1, when congress failed to veto any of the proposals.

The president hailed this court reform as one of the most important steps that has been taken in connection with the judiciary in years, and argued that if congress delegated authority to judicial experts to revise their own procedure, those responsible for administration of the executive branch should be given the same authority.

INDICTS MAYOR

State Also Brings Bribery Charges Against 18 Other Officials.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—(AP)—The state moved today for an early trial of Mayor Leo E. J. Carney and 18 other city officials indicted yesterday on charges of bribery and conspiracy.

Carney branded the accusations the "climax of a two-year persecution" and asked the public to "withhold judgment."

Finish Concrete Pouring On 'Cut-Off', Road to Open Dec. 1

Workmen on the Windsor cut-off on route 42 northeast of Mansfield completed pouring concrete on the new section of highway last night, and the route will be open to traffic about Dec. 1, two weeks ahead of schedule, Boyd Wierman, Richland county resident state highway engineer, said today.

Favorable weather has enabled the contractor to push work on the project without interruption, and bricklayers are scheduled to start work early next week, the engineer said.

He estimated that nearly 1,000,000 bricks will be laid on the Richland county end of the improvement before the last of November. Nearly half of the 3.59 miles of new highway is concrete slab which has been completed.

Approximately three-fourths of a mile of the cut-off in Richland county will not be paved until next spring, Wierman said, because to begin work on it now would force traffic to follow a one-way route over the improvement throughout the winter.

The unpaved section will not prevent the use of the finished section of the highway, however, Wierman pointed out.

The W. H. Ringwald and company, Chillicothe, is the contractor for the $251,000 improvement which will eliminate several dangerous curves and shorten the distance between Mansfield and Ashland.

PLEADS GUILTY

Clerk Fined $25 for Failure to Give Sales Tax Stamp.

Arrested in a state-wide drive for stricter compliance for the issuance of sales tax receipts, Mrs. Leona McMullen, 184 South Franklin avenue, an employe of the S. S. Kresge store, was fined $25 and costs in municipal court today when she pleaded guilty to charges of failing to issue sales tax stamps.

Mrs. McMullen was arrested by Robert L. Leach, sales tax inspector, who testified that he made a 10-cent purchase at the store yesterday and that the clerk failed to issue the sales tax receipt.

The fine and costs were paid by the manager of the store, Allen K. Ports, court clerk said.

Meanwhile, A. B. Mabee, district manager of the Ohio state tax commission, warned that failure to issue sales tax stamps would result in arrest, since the state office had ordered a state-wide drive on sales tax violations.

FARM INCOME DROPS

DOCKERY OUT FOR WOODWARD

Ex-Opponent Promises Aid If Townsendites Agree to Vote G. O. P. Ticket.

who presided at last night's meeting. May had previously said the session was either a Townsend or Republican rally.

Quoting primary election figures to show that the Democratic candidates for congress received 13,000 more votes than the Republicans in the 17th district in August, Col. Dockery said, "If Woodward wins, he will need the support of all Republicans and Townsend Democrats in this district."

Hits Bulkley as 'Yes-Man.'

Col. Dockery called Robert J. Bulkley, the Democratic candidate for U. S. senator, "a rubber-stamp yes-man for President Roosevelt," and added that "Charles Sawyer, the Democratic candidate for governor, has been endorsed by the Communists and I haven't heard him refusing their support."

Woodward and Beecher Hess of Norwood, O., Townsend lecturer, spoke at the same meeting, Woodward devoting most of his talk to an attack on the New Deal and Hess outlining the purposes of the Townsend plan.

Hess said the state Townsend organization would recommend that the national headquarters endorse Woodward for congress in the 17th district; Robert A. Taft, Republican, for U. S. senator, John McSweeney, Democrat, for congressman-at-large, and George H. Bender, Republican, for congressman-at-large.

Taft, who spoke in Mansfield Wednesday night, said he favored giving the Townsend plan a "fair hearing in congress" but would not endorse the plan.

"In this election it's not a question of one candidate against another but one of a government by the people against rule by a few," Woodward asserted.

"Scared of Outlook."

"For the first time from a public platform I'll admit that I'm scared of the outlook in this country," he said. "If we don't whip the New Deal this year, it may be too late to save the nation by 1940. The Democratic party is being destroyed and thousands of Republicans are being swept along with it."

Urging the enactment of the Townsend plan as a means of correcting the nation's economic and taxation ills, Woodward said, "We have the money and the materials for rehabilitation, yet we have poverty and 40,000,000 people on some form of relief in the midst of riches. I give my heart to a plan that will help the situation."

Recommending a reform in the taxing system, Woodward said the reduction in real estate taxes was like cutting off one end of a short bed sheet and sewing it on the other to make the sheet long enough.

"They cut the real estate taxes and put more on in hidden taxes to deceive the voter," he asserted.

"My opponent, Mr. Ashbrook, has stood for pensions, and I praise him for that, but he has never gone as far as he should have gone. I will go further. I favor adequate pensions for all war veterans up to 60 years old and then I want to see all the needy retired on a respectable annuity," Woodward declared.

Hitting at Ashbrook's attack on the Townsend plan, Hess asserted that "he either has been badly misinformed or he deliberaly misrepresented the plan to the public when he called it a $200-a-month pension scheme."

"The Townsend national headquarters in Chicago is more interested in the election in the 17th district than in any other in Ohio, because Woodward was nominated solely on his Townsend platform," Hess said.

The Townsend plan which would be financed by a two per cent transaction, or gross sales tax, is "not a pension plan and it does not force anyone to take $200 a month. That is the maximum," he declared.

Republicans Plan Township Rallies.

With Republican candidates for state offices booked for talks in other sections of Ohio for the next 10 days, Richland county G. O. P. leaders today prepared for a series of township rallies in all parts of the county.

Before the township meetings get under way, however, the Women's Republican council will sponsor a dinner meeting at headquarters here next Wednesday night. Members of the council and their families will attend. C. C. Crabbe, from the party's state headquarters at Columbus, will be the principal speaker.

Launching a drive in the northern section of the county, G. O. P. county and district candidates will speak at rallies late next week at Shelby and Plymouth.

A meeting will be held Friday night in the Shelby school auditorium and on the public square in Plymouth Saturday night if the weather permits, Atty. Stuart H. Cramer, secretary of the county executive committee, announced.

Cramer said the committee planned to extend its campaign into every township before election, with the sessions in charge of county party leaders and county and district candidates scheduled to speak.

Walter B. Woodward, Republican candidate for congress in the 17th district, will speak at a rally tonight in Delaware.

He is scheduled to speak Tuesday night at a Townsend rally in Mt. Vernon, where Robert C. Townsend, son of the founder of the Townsend plan, will be the principal speaker.

support such a plan. Why don't you include soldiers and sailors in your plan, and the blind and others who are unable to support themselves.

"No, you have picked a select group of you and your families to enjoy something which you can never attain.

"Think of what a two per cent transaction tax would mean to this country. It would increase the cost of living by at least 25 per cent and within a year's time this country would be in bankruptcy."

Favors Pensions For Aged.

Ashbrook, who in past years has been dubbed "pension Bill" by fellow legislators in Washington for his support of pensions for ex-service men and widows, said he was in favor of a "reasonable" old age pension but couldn't see the taxing of 22 billion dollars on 85 per cent of the population to give the other 15 per cent "something they couldn't spend if they had it."

"When those persons (referring to the Townsend leaders) cruelly deceive you, then you will find out that Bill Ashbrook is your friend, regardless of politics, race, creed or color," he added.

Ashbrook said he had heard that his opponent Woodward had said some "very nice things" about him and that he would like to return the compliment.

"You know," he said, "Woodward has never harmed anyone. He has never been before the courts and in fact he has never done anything except sit under an apple tree in the shade during the summer and in a rocking chair beside the fireplace in the winter.

"Last week I called him the president of the Richland County Rocking Chair association. I want to change that and tonight I'll call him the vice president of the association."

Ashbrook pointed out that Woodward owns one quarter interest in a 50-acre farm he inherited from his father near Bellville and that he has been complaining about the farm bill—and has complained bitterly.

"But I have taken care of that," he said. "I spoke to the president and shortly I hope to obtain an executive order that will free Woodward from meeting the provisions of the bills."

West Praises New Deal.

West in his talk sang the praises of President Roosevelt, the New Deal and the accomplishments of the national administration.

He commended the work of Congressman Ashbrook who sat beside him on the platform, and U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley, seeking re-election.

"The name of Bill Ashbrook is synonymous with service," and that in Washington he is regarded as one of the most industrious and respected members of the house of representatives," West said.

West asserted that Bulkley, charged by Republicans as being an administration "yes-man", stood "head and shoulders" above the group of senators from the 48 states and that he was a "statesman to be proud of."

He hailed the president as the "supreme patriot" in the nation's history, "a leader who restored the country to its people who were on the brink of a national disaster five years ago."

"For this alone," West said, the president should be entitled to the eternal gratitude of the American people.

Credits Roosevelt.

"Several weeks ago we were on the brink of a new world war. One voice spoke—it was that of our great leader Franklin Roosevelt, and when he spoke and appealed to the nations of the world to keep negotiations open, he brought the world from the brink of war back to safety and peace."

West asserted that the president did not seek to set up a dictatorship in the United States as his opponents have charged.

"If Roosevelt had wanted to set himself up as a dictator, he could have accomplished that four years ago when he had the majority of power in congress," West said. "He was in a position then as never before to set himself as a dictator had he so wanted."

The former congressman from the 17th district told the audience that during the last six years the greatest obstacles which the national administration has had to overcome has been the opposition from vested wealth and the capitalistic control of big business.

Other candidates who spoke briefly were Carl V. Weygandt, seeking re-election as chief justice of the Ohio Supreme court; R. M. Weingardener, candidate for Supreme court; Hugh Culbertson, candidate for Ashland county court of common pleas; Guy B. Murray, seeking re-election as Ashland county representative to the general assembly; F. E. Wicks, running for Ashland county auditor, George W. Tugand, for county commissioner.

Roe Wolfe, Ashland county Democratic executive committee chairman and Charles Beer, presided at the meeting. Music was furnished by State Treasurer Clarence Knisley and his band.

SAWYER SPEAKS HERE SATURDAY

Democrats Will Fire 'Both Barrels' at Two Major Rallies in City.

elaborate on his statement that his Republican opponent had entered an "unholy alliance" with Gv. Martin L. Davey.

Democratic state headquarters in Columbus announced today that Sawyer was developing his statement made in a radio talk Wednesday night that John W. Bricker, his opponent had agreed to give Davey 30 per cent of the state patronage in return for support of Davey adherents.

Bulkley last night in a radio address from Cincinnati recalled that Robert A. Taft, his Republican opponent, had admitted an expenditure of $100,000 in the primary campaign and predicted that the outlay would be much greater at the end of the general election campaign.

The senator declared that Taft had a "very substantial investment to protect" and asked "how much will be put in now to win the election? He certainly will not feel limited to $100,000. Will he agree to a $200,000 limit or $500,000? I wonder if he is willing to say that there will be any limit at all."

"He was not taught to squander money," Bulkley said, "and it would have been squandering unless he believed it to be necessary to win."

300 Expected at Luncheon.

Approximately 300 Democratic women from the 8th and 17th districts are expected to attend tomorrow's luncheon, at which Mrs. Harriett B. Stuart, of Bucyrus, 8th district state central committeewoman will preside.

Members of the committee who have assisted Mrs. Marie Bell, 17th district committeewoman are Mrs. Carl Kahl and Mrs. Herman Wentz, in charge of reservations; Mrs. Herman Homberger, reception committee chairman and Mrs. T. J. Metcalf, decorations.

At 7:30 p. m. tomorrow Sawyer and Bulkley will headline a district rally at the Democratic headquarters on West Fourth street at which John C. O'Donnell, Richland county executive committee chairman, will preside.

Following the meeting there will be dancing, with music by Dale Stevens and his orchestra

Last night nearly 200 colored Democrats gathered at the Richland county Colored Democratic club on North Diamond street, to hear W. J. Rogers, representing the state treasurer's office call for a "solid negro vote for the Democratic party."

Other speakers at the meeting were Earl A. Williamson, Ohio State university student from Columbus, representing the Ohio State Democratic league; Thomas Davis, president of the Ohio State Democratic league; Dr. Frank Tompkins, Washington, national recorder of deeds; Mrs. Elizabeth McDuffie, White House maid. G. A. Baer, county central committee chairman, O'Donnell and other party leaders.

Announcement was made at the meeting that a colored Democratic rally will be held at party headquarters on West Fourth street, at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Speakers will be Edward Brown of Washington, national education administrator for the CCC and Thomas J. Davis, Cleveland, president of the Ohio State Democratic league of Cleveland.

Tonight Ralph C. Lutz, candidate for re-election as representative to the general assembly, and C. L. Mitchell, candidate for re-election to the board of county commissioners will speak at a meeting of the Hungarian Political and Social club at the Sons of Herman club on Orange street.

White House Attache In City

Two government employes, one a White House attache, enroute to Cleveland, last night visited Mansfield colored Democrats and spoke briefly at their rally at 246 North Diamond street. The visitors were Mrs. Elizabeth McDuffie, one of Mrs. Roosevelt's personal maids, who was accompanied by Dr. Frank Tompkins, government recorder of deeds in Washington. Both are colored.

eral years later she purchased his interests, operating it from that time on as her own She told friends that she hoped she would never have to turn any person away from the hospital, whether they could pay for service or not, and that after her death wanted it to stand as her monument.

It was operated as a hospital until three years ago when she turned it into a nursing home. With the exception of several years spent in Cleveland she has managed and operated the institution herself, the last few years with the aid of her husband, Prof. J. Amos Jones

She married Prof. Jones, a native of North Wales, Jan. 1, 1919. She was a member of First Presbyterian church of Cleveland, whose p astor, Rev. Samuel W. Griffiths, had been a life-long friend. He was born near her home in South Wales.

Funeral services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 2 p m. Monday, with Rev. Griffiths officiating, assisted by Rev. David N Roller pastor of the Mansfield First Presbyterian church. She will be buried in her nurses' uniform, wearing the small gold pin that she acquired years ago when she pledged her services to humanity.

The body will be placed in the receiving vault at Mansfield cemetery until arrangements have been made to send it back to her home in South Wales, where a brother, Lewis John Thomas, residing at Swansea, S. W., will receive it.

FEARS SCHOOL CLOSING HERE

Miller Says System Will Be Broke Dec. 1 Unless Aid Comes From State.

000 debt authorized by the state department of education, the Mansfield schools have only a few thousand dollars in sight until after Jan. 1 unless they get another authorization to borrow, Supt. Miller said.

Virtually all of the funds due the school from the last county real estate tax collection have been consumed in advance draws, and the next collection will not begin until after Nov. 1, the county auditor's figures show.

The personal tax collection which will get under way in the county next month will give the city's schools not more than $29,000, Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the school board, said, and that amount will not be due until February.

A small part, however, may be drawn before then in advances as the taxes are collected, he asserted. Approximately $45,000 will be due the city schools from the state in November, but even if it is allocated, it will come in the form of authority to borrow more money, Dr. Bristor said.

There was no assurance, he added when the board would receive cash to retire the debt already contracted.

A number of the county's rural schools were believed faced with a similar crisis, although no figures on their financial condition were available.

Dwindling sales tax receipts and the expiration of the liquid fuel and cigaret tax laws on March 31 1939, were blamed by Sutton for the crisis. The state foundation program obtains most of its revenue from those sources.

CHAPTER 25

ALL HER life long Judy had given orders. Now, as the Boland heiress, engaged to Marry Count Phillippe Alexis von Gunderfield, suggested that Judy go to her own room, her cheeks flamed. She bit her tongue, choking back her hurt pride. Then she paused. She was afraid to enter that room.

The thought was so unexpected that it staggered her.

"The butler will look under the bed, if you wish, Miss Rogers," Abbey said, her voice rich with unconcealed amusement.

Judy had flown through a bad fog in Italy. She had been in a car that had upset, and she had climbed a mountain once.

These dangers had not scared her much. But the menace that might lurk on the other side of that door took away her breath. Then anger asserted itself. If there was a gunman there, it would prove her story.

Down the hall sounded Ronald's voice: "Hi, folks. Having a town assembly?"

Abbey answered: "A safety meeting. Judy is seeing armed ghosts."

Judy noted that Abbey used her first name. Even in her fright she was glad. It made the other girl more human, a little closer.

"I'm good at banishing ghosts," Ronald was saying, coming down the hall. "What's it all about?"

Judy was closing her door. She heard him call her name, then repeat it. She pretended not to hear. Might as well learn now that whatever refuge he gave was proffered through kindness or pity. She had read the signs wrong. He wanted Abbey The count did, too. Let Abbey manage the situation.

The room was quiet and comfortable. The fire was nearly out, and only the bed lamp cast a pool of lambent light over the polished floor, where the green hand-woven rugs did not cover it. The wind was blowing. Blowing heavily. Strange that only one curtain moved. Very strange . . .

The armed intruder stepped from behind the draperies.

"Welcome back. Get the warning sounded?"

Judy did not scream. She was taken too aghast at the man's impudence to be as scared as she had expected.

"Never mind. I know that you rapped on the old boy's door. I don't blame you. He thinks you are cock-eyed about him, doesn't he? So does the dollar sign he's marrying. I'll show them. I'm going down the hall."

He moved to the door.

"But they're out there," Judy said, forgetting that this time she was warning the maniac.

He laughed. "Whose side are you on, honey? His or mine? Better decide."

"They'll catch you if you shoot. You'd better put down the gun."

Suddenly the man sat down. His face paled and his mouth twisted.

"Sorry," he murmured. "I'm sick. About to cash in so thought I'd — finish — the—count—before —I—do. Got a bullet for myself."

Judy put her hand on the button but his eyes saw the gesture and he regained strength. "Never mind. I always say if you plan something, see it through. See—it—through."

He examined his gun He opened it He looked up at Judy with a face so bewildered, so disappointed that she felt a stabbing instant of pity for him

"What is it?" she asked

"The gun Empty. I forgot No—more—bullets." He slumped down on the floor in a final surrender.

Judy turned again to the door, but it had opened. The sound had been heard.

"Judy!" There was a vibrant tenderness, the love, the warm protectiveness that flooded Ronald's voice—of which she had dared to dream. Why, he must care! Or was her mind betraying her, and she simply imagined it? Then for the second time in her life strong arms had seized her and a heart was thudding so near her own that its beatings filled the room. "Judy, are you all right?"

The mad, sweet moment was over. He relinquished her. It was he who turned to the man who had collapsed, suggested a doctor, and an ambulance.

"But he was going to shoot Phillippe," Abbey said slowly.

"Poor galoot. He couldn't shoot anyone. He's harmless. That's a broken gun, with no cartridges. Do you place him, count?"

Phillippe nodded. "I think so. His father held a grudge and this boy vowed to get even some day." His eyes held a strange light. "So he came across the sea to settle the score—to settle the score with a broken gun." He turned away, and his lips twitched.

Servants carried the man to another room, to wait for the coming of the doctor and the ambulance. Abbey, white and shaken, stood by. Only once she asked if the police should be called. It was the count who spoke sharply then.

"No! I'll look after the man. It's a rotten system, one family living off the rest. I don't blame him." Then his dry, humorless mirth returned. "Too bad I was born in the castle. Think how well I could have stormed the gates with a sword and banner."

He went away quickly.

Ronald crossed to Judy. "Better go to bed, too. I'll supervise everything."

"And I'll help," Abbey supplemented.

Back in her room again, Judy did not sleep. She no longer was afraid. But she was unnerved, moved, trembling. She felt cold. She poked the fire higher, piled fluffy blankets on the bed, at last climbed between the silken sheets. Half asleep, half awake, she wondered if she had dreamed that moment when Ronald had held her so closely. If he didn't mean it, why had he petended to be so moved?

In the morning she lay for a long moment trying to recall the events of the night. She was hot. She pushed the blankets away. Why were there so many of them? And why were the windows closed? Memory came swiftly. She sprang out of bed, took a quick shower, ran a comb through her bright curls, dusted her nose with powder, briefly touched her lips with rouge, pulled a soft green woolen frock over her head and stepped into gray pumps. Then she hurried to the dining room.

The snow was falling steadily as though it had vowed to put in eight hours of white work. The mail table was heaped with Christmas packages that had come in the early post. Mr. Boland, whom she had met only once, was leaving. He smiled at her, said something about the weather, and went out to his car.

Judy turned to the dining room. Dinner she might be asked to take on a tray in her room, and lunch might follow the same precept, but breakfast was a meal which she always had in the dining room. The long sideboard held hot dishes, coffee and hot chocolate and milk, cooked and uncooked cereals, fruit juices, toast and hot breads. Two maids officiated. People were served whenever they came.

Judy decided that she must be earlier than she had thought. Otherwise, Mr. Boland would not be leaving. To her surprise she heard voices in the dining room. She paused at the door, out of sight, trying to place them before entering.

Ronald was saying: "Abbey, you can't do it. You'll be sorry all of your life. Don't you see, it's the very thing he wants you to do? You'll be caught. Break it now, today! Let me face him for you."

Abbey's voice, tired and old, answered: "Ronald, you're sweet, but I can't. I want to! Oh you know how I want to! But I'm afraid, so desperately afraid!"

MR. T. D. DODSON, THE VENDOL MAN

NO AILING PERSON IN MANSFIELD AND VICINITY SHOULD DECLINE MY OFFER

I have been sent here by the Vendol Co., in Baltimore, Md., to introduce this amazing successful Root, Herb and Alkaline Medicine which has done so much good throughout Ohio and elsewhere.

Hundreds testify how my full strength Compound has given astonishing relief from indigestion, sour, acid stomach, gas, palpitation, dizziness, headaches, nervousness, coated tongue, pains in back and limbs, that tired, wornout feeling, when due to constipation or need of a mild diuretic to the kidneys.

TRIAL SIZE FOR 25c ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY ONLY

"I invite every sick and ailing man and woman in Mansfield and vicinity to visit me at Weinberger's Drug Store, 32 N. Main Street, and get one of the Special Introductory size bottles of my grand Root, Herb and Alkaline Medicine Vendol for 25c on Friday and Saturday of this week only. My regular, full treatment size is $1.25 per bottle.

"While Vendol is new in Mansfield, it is well known throughout New England, the mid-West and the South, where thousands of bottles have been sold and is acclaimed by appreciative people for the wonderful relief it has given, in many cases after all other medicines they had tried, had failed.

A Liberal-Sized Trial Bottle

"This trial bottle is sufficient to prove to you what Vendol will do, then you can decide whether to continue the treatment. Isn't that fair? If you are constipated whch makes you feel stuffed up, bloated with gas and in misery from indigestion, sour stomach, acid risings, lump in your throat, feel dizzy, spots dance before your eyes, tongue coated, awake every morning with headaches, stiff muscles and you just hate to go to work, see if Vendol doesn't change all this for you.

"If you haven't gotten much relief from constipation from strong laxatives, salts or oils, and you are afraid to eat a hearty meal, knowing what the after suffering will be; if every time you stoop over you have to steady yourself because of dizziness; if your muscles are full of aches and pains that often keep you awake, if you have to arise during the night; if you feel generally blue and discouraged, you are the person that Vendol will prove a blessing, and I hope you will come right down to Weinberger's Drug Store and ask for me, the Vendol Man, and let me tell you all about my medicine."

Vendol Not Like Ordinary Medicines

"The formula of Vendol is different. It contains mild Alkalines, Roots and Herbs, some of which are, Seena Leaves, Poke Root, May Apple, Aloes, Cohosh, Gentian, Dandelion, Soda Bicarbonate and others. The valuable ingredients of Vendol have been known to medical men for centuries and have benefitted millions of people.

"Everywhere Vendol is sold, men and women praise it highly. I could quote thousands, but give you here a few from nearby Ohio towns, to prove what a highly efficient medicine it is.

Mr. Cliff Manley of route 1, Millersburg, says: "I never had any medicine give such satisfactory relief from indigestion, gas in my stomach and acid risings, associated with constipation, as Vendol. It is fine."

Mr. H. L. Kyle, 701 Heltman Ave., Ashland, writes: "I believe every muscle in my body was full of pain. I could hardly bend over, and my back felt like it would break. Vendol gave marvelous relief from constipation and acted as a diuretic to my kidneys and now all the pains are gone."

Mr. Albert Swartz of route 1 Wooster, says: "I was so dizzy at times that I'd have to hold on to something to steady myself, little spots danced before my eyes, my skin was sallow and full of little pimples. After vendol relieved my constipation, these troubles all disappeared and I feel great now."

"Now, I don't know what you want a medicine to do for you, but no expense has been spared to make this a medicine of unusual merit. It has helped thousands, but you will never know whether it will benefit you until you try it. To help you do this at small cost, I have a Special Introductory size bottle of Vendol that I'm selling for two days only—Friday and Saturday of this week only—for 25c. My regular, full treatment size sells for $1.25. If the trial size proves satisfactory I know you will come back and get more.

"So, come to Weinberger's Drug Store, 32 N. Main Street, ask for me, The Vendol Man, and I will tell you honestly just how Vendol can help you. Take home a trial bottle and see if you don't get the same relief as so many others have."

Senator's Kin Among 73 Indicted In WPA Inquiry

FINDINGS MADE BY GRAND JURY IN NEW MEXICO

Misuse of Workers, Falsifying of Payrolls Charged by Panel After Hearing.

(By United Press)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Seventy-three persons, including the sister and the son-in-law of Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-N. M.), were to surrender today to provide bond guaranteeing their appearance in court to answer indictments charging them with criminal misuse of the works progress administration's machinery, materials and workers.

The grand jury indicted 62 persons on charges of conspiracy to violate the WPA appropriations code, which carries a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and two years imprisonment. It indicted 11 others on charges of diversion of WPA labor, falsification of payrolls or diversion of materials. Conviction on these charges carries a maximum $2,000 fine and one year imprisonment.

Senator's Kin Named.

Among the indicted were Chavez's son-in-law, Asst. U. S. Attorney Stanley Miller, Mrs. Anita Tafoya, sister to the senator, and Fred Healy who was dismissed as New Mexico WPA administrator by Federal Administrator Harry Hopkins on Sept. 24.

The WPA appropriations code rules that the system's money may not be used for political purposes. But the jury reported that violations affected nearly every section of New Mexico and favored no political organization specifically. It said that in one community "one particular political advantage was sought" while in another "political advantage of just an opposite type was sought."

Time Unspecified.

Time of the violations were unspecified and copies of specific charges against the defendants were not immediately available.

General charges for indictments said that threats were used to compel WPA workers to join with indicted officials in taking joint and unified political action. WPA employes reportedly were made to help in political campaigning while they were on the payroll.

WPA workers were said by the jury to have been used preceding a special constitutional amendment election last year. The amendment was to abolish present law that county and state officials can serve two consecutive terms only. The amendment was defeated.

Wife Held Prisoner In Dark Basement, Manufacturer Held

MARGATE, N. J.—(INS)—Charged with keeping his wife "unlawfully and feloniously imprisoned" in the basement of their home, Alfred G. Reed, vice president of the Shill Rolling Chair company, today awaited a hearing next Monday.

Reed was held in $500 bail after Police Chief Charles Miller told of going to the defendant's home on Oct. 5 and finding Mrs. Reed "sitting in a straight-back chair in the corner of a dark, damp basement room, where conditions were very unsanitary." Miller testified he learned of the woman's alleged incarceration from a man who had talked to her through a grating.

Mrs. Reed now is confined to an insane asylum.

During her 16 years as office secretary of the Visiting Nurses' association, Mrs. Ray Lantz had recorded in the records the births of hundreds of babies for Mansfield mothers. She resigned her post several months ago, and someone else had the job of recording the births. Today she joined the ranks of the mothers. A son was born to her at General hospital this morning.

Behind the scenes of a heated political campaign in the county a friendly feud is being carried on by two of the leaders, one in each party. Formerly associates in the Republican ranks, one of them drifted over to the Democratic side because, he said, he looked into the pot that was supposed to contain two chickens and saw nothing but a couple of eggs so old they would never hatch. The Republican counters with the friendly charge that his former co-worker sold his birthwright for a "mess of pottage."

Apropos of the parking puzzle in the city, a postcard to a Mansfielder yesterday gave an outsider's impression of it. "I drove through Mansfield the other night," the outsider, from Chillicothe, wrote to a friend here, "and decided to stop at the hotel for dinner. It was about 6:30 p. m., but the streets were full of cars and I had to park a long way from the hotel. What was going on—a convention of some kind?" To which the Mansfielder wrote back, "Nothing was going on. The streets here are always like that." Well, they are, aren't they?

Determined to do something about their school spirit which has been slipping at football games this fall, Mansfield Senior high school pupils diagnosed their "rooting" at a clinic this morning in their home rooms. Pupils were asked to offer suggestions for the betterment of the school in general and more cheering at grid games in particular. The best of the ideas were to be studied at a "pep" session later in the day. They headed their discussions, "School Spirit as Applied to Athletics".

GRALL INDICTED ON BRIBE COUNT

Suspended Lorain Sheriff Attempts to Raise Bond After Night in Cell.

(By International News Service)

ELYRIA—Indicted on bribery charges and in the custody of an Elyria policeman, suspended Lorain county sheriff William F. Grall today sought to raise $20,000 bond after spending part of the night in a cell of the jail recently in his charge.

Grall was suspended yesterday by common pleas court when he was unable to raise the $20,000 bond.

The former Lorain mayor was locked up shortly after midnight when Patrolman C. E. Miller, in whose custody he was, went off duty. Another patrolman accompanied the ousted sheriff wherever he went today.

Meanwhile the duties of sheriff were taken over by L. A. Fauver, 72, of Lorain, former county engineer. Fauver was appointed by Judges Guy B. Findley and D. A. Cook late yesterday. He immediately furnished $15,000 bond of office.

Grall was indicted yesterday on charges of accepting a $30 bribe from auburn haired Maxine Barbour, alias Penny Morgan, alleged operator of a house of ill repute. Mrs. Barbour, indicted jointly with the ousted sheriff, could not be found.

TURNS TRAITOR

Watch-Dog Fights Detectives As Youths Rob Garage.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — For sale cheap—a misguided watch-dog. Purchased to guard a Cleveland firm's garage, the dog, a large German Shepherd, turned on detectives last night and protected three youthful burglar "friends." After telephoning for reinforcements, the officers finally collared the canine, then the culprits, between 13 and 15 years old.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

LITHUANIA IN MOVE TO CALM NAZI MINORITY

Czechs Make New Proposal to Hungary, But Rejection of Terms Is Expected.

(By Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, said today that Pope Pius had denounced Nazi "persecution" in Germany and Austria with allusions to tyrants of the past.

It said the Pope recalled Julian the Apostate, Nero and the Apostle Judas in references which archeologists, who he addressed in an audience at Castel Gandolfo yesterday, said they took as meaning Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

L'Osservatore, in a summary of the Pope's remarks, noted that he spoke of archeology as dedicated to exhuming monuments and studying "dead texts."

Then, it said, he added that "not far away quite a different archeology is being practiced."

"Works and personages which would better be left in oblivion are being called and recalled on the scene of life and action," the newspaper summarized the Pope's message.

Tension In Memel.

LONDON—(AP)—Europe's difficult minorities problems suddenly turned the Memel situation tense today. Authoritative sources in Kaunas, Lithuania, said the government had decided to shelve two state security bills which had been opposed in German-inhabited Memel.

Memel, 1,099 square miles in area, was detached from Germany after the World war and given to Lithuania in 1923.

In Budapest, a new Czechoslovak offer to settle Hungary's demands for her Czechoslovak minorities was said to be more liberal than any of three previous proposals but still to be unacceptable.

Well-informed sources said Hungary would appeal to Germany, Italy and Poland to compel Czechoslovakia to submit to the Hungarian demands by the end of the month.

SUITOR SOUGHT

Divorcee, 31, Fatally Wounded in Parents' Home.

RACINE, Wis.—(INS)—A rejected suitor was sought for questioning today about the fatal shooting of Mrs. Anite Olsen Benson, 31, a divorcee, at the rear door of her parents' home last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Olsen said that their daughter had quarreled with a man named Otto Schultz, 35, earlier in the evening and that he was later seen in the yard after she left home for a party.

Mrs. Benson was shot three times and although there was no sign of her assailant when her parents rushed to the door, pieces of broken jewelry on the ground indicated there had been a struggle.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Wife-Beaters of World Are Too Many for U. S. to Interfere with Neighbors

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It once was a fundamental right of the American husband in most states to beat his wife with a rod no thicker than his thumb. Fortunately, if you insist, that right has been grievously impaired by indirect curtailment. He must not inflict bodily harm, nor has he a right to disturb the neighbors with her screams.

Moreover, courts, grand juries and juries have leaned sharply to the belief that the wife in such cases may defend herself by small arms or with the bread knife, and this has surrounded an old privilege with such risks as to prevent the free exercise of the same. This, as Mr. Herbert Hoover and others have observed with alarm, the price of our liberties is constant vigilance lest they be destroyed by stealth.

I would not campaign for the restitution of this particular right in its original beauty, but do venture to suggest that the United States always has been too ready to dash into the home of a neighbor crying "unhand that woman" and that the domestic fights of the neighbors command our attention to the neglect of troubles of our own.

Americans, in a mood of pure chivalry and pity, drove the Spaniards out of this hemisphere and put an end to their atrocities in Cuba only to see a day when the Cubans, celebrating their liberation from the rule of one of their own patriot heroes, Gerardo Machado, seized prize cattle on his farm and tore poor, unoffending beasts limb from living limb in various revenge on the fugitive dictator.

Americans have meddled in Britain's Irish problem, in the internal affairs of the Russia of the czar and in racial and religious feuds in the near east. This country's people attempted to impose democracy on Europeans who have neither the wish nor the knack for Democratic government and found it as awkward as Hitlerism would be to us. After all, that—after a crusade in the heat of which Americans never paused to doubt that democracy was what those peoples wanted—there came a day when solemn little Italian boys, marching in fascist formations, cried with great spirit, "we spit on democracy!"

Never in the memory of any man now living has the air been filled with cries more piteous from the homes of the neighbors than those which now rise from the countries of Europe.

We may believe the heads of these households to be insane, and the horror of the persecution in Hitler's Germany is such that the effects are felt outside. In beating his wife with a rod which seems much bigger than his thumb he is disturbing the peace of the whole world, but, dreadful as his conduct is, the job of volunteer policeman to put an end to it is more than the United States can handle. It is more important—and a prior duty of the Americans—to abolish racial oppression at home quite aside from the fact that this country just hasn't the muscle or the determination to remedy things abroad.

There is too little appreciation by foreign groups or groups with foreign ties of the liberties and opportunities which they enjoy themselves in this country. Little and big clots of citizens who came from other countries or were born of refugee parents busy themselves trying to make sentiment on behalf of their suffering kin. They exert political pressure on party leaders to obtain recognition of themselves as foreign or semi-foreign groups in American local and state government.

By preserving their foreignness Americans of Italian and German blood expose themselves to intimidation by outwardly Americanized editors and other agents of the dictators who constantly threaten woe to their relatives in the old countries.

Even Poles, who yearned for Polish liberation but wouldn't think of returning to Poland, still consider themselves to be somehow, in some indefinite way, Polish long after Poland went free, her ancient wrongs redressed to the limit of possibility. Jews, enjoying liberties here the equal of which they would discover in few other lands on earth, strive to involve the country in some rescue of Jews abroad, knowing that in a showdown on such a proposal American public sentiment would react on themselves and fail of their purpose.

The United States can't rescue the Jews or the Armenians in their never-ending woes or restore Czechoslovakia or free Abyssinia or China, for the wife-beaters of the world are too many, too far away, too big, and, anyway, in private truth, we sometimes fetch the old lady the back of our hand ourselves.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Just when it looked as if the world had gone to pot, and the international goose was in it, hanging low, a little note plopped cheerily on this desk.

Mr. Mickey Mouse, the note informed, was celebrating his tenth birthday with a few movin' pitchers, and would we—?

Well, I went. And now I know what's the matter with all the peace pacts that seem to crumble every time they bump into an argument. The trouble is they don't have a vital clause—a clause that would require contending parties, diplomats and generals and multicolor shirts alike, to sit through a series of Walt Disney shorts before they proceed with their bombing parties.

Walt showed us some of his new season's product, and it was a program to make you feel good. You feel good because here's one guy in this cockeyed world who's out after nothing more ambitious than to make you laugh and feel good.

If you want to be critical, I think you'll find "The Ugly Duckling" the prize offering among the new Disneys. This is the Disneyish interpretation of the Anderson fairy tale, and it's as touching as it is beautiful and funny.

"Goofy and Wilbur" introduces a new and distinguished character in the Disney menagerie. That's Wilbur, a versatile, dynamic and chipper little grasshopper who looks startlingly like Harry Langdon. Wilbur is Goofy's pal and aid in fishing. Wilbur skates across the water, lures the fish into a chase which winds up in Goofy's net. But Wilbur miscalculates once, things look MIGHTY bad. If you don't fall for Wilbur you'd better see your doctor.

The rambunctious Mr. Duck is with us again in "Donald's Lucky Day." Donald, the unsuspecting messenger boy, carries a time bomb—and the day is Friday the 13th. It's fast and funny, one of the raucous Donald's "triumphs."

"The Practical Pig" revives the famed porky trio which in 1933 brightened a depressed world. Two little pigs go swimming, but the third—the same who built his house of bricks—is busy on an ingenious lie detector. The Big Bad Wolf, disguised as a Lorelei with a song ("Frankie and Johnny") on her lips, nabs the foolish ones.

"The Farmyard Symphony" offers country life with poetic humor—and romance, too, between the stately rooster and the beautiful white pullet. Also some grand opera as you've never heard it before.

Mickey Mouse is "The Brave Little Tailor" with Minnie as the Princess whose hand he wins after bagging the terrible giant.

"Mother Goose Goes Hollywood" is a hilarious procession of nursery rhymes portrayed by characters you might mistake for Katharine Hepburn, Hugh Herbert, Garbo, Ed G. Robinson et als, if you skipped the foreword about any resemblance to actual characters living or dead, etc. The Hepburnish Little Bo-Peep is perfect.

Walt took a drastic step in "Ferdinand the Bull." It's the first time he ever bought a current best-seller for filming. Naturally, some people will be around saying, "But he changed the book!" He did, so slightly that you'll have to look closely to see where. I liked "Ferdinand" because Disney can do no wrong!

Can Second Trip To Altar Survive?

One In A Series.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes Marriage Successful?

Second marriages have the advantages over first marriages that the expert has over the amateur. When the very young marry, it's not unlike starting off a team of unbroken colts to pull in double harness. They are mettlesome, they lack experience. Each prefers his own judgment in negotiating a bad bit of road. Patience, tolerance and giving a fair show to the other yoke mate must all be learned.

Unless you're the try-again kind, given to constant experiment, tragedy seldom overtakes a second trip to the altar.

But, dear widow and widower, there are uncharted rocks in the matrimonial sea — the virtues of your deceased husband or wife. No man or woman can stand having another held up as a model. If the model is the dear deceased, a crack is visible in the foundations of the home.

Better pay compliments to your current spouses while they are still alive and can appreciate them. Do not embalm them and bring them out to the discomfort of your living partners.

In all fairness to a second marriage, the door should be closed on the first, and yet with the best intentions in the world it's hard to set to permanent rest these ghosts of the first mating.

A second husband may depend upon it that he will have more consideration and tact in his lady's loving care of him than the boy she married in her twenties. Out of regret for the things she said and did, and the things she left undone and didn't say, will come tenderness, generosity and consideration to this second mate.

And a final reason why a second marriage may be more successful than a first is that the contracting parties have learned to laugh things off. They have learned the technique of marriage and staying married. There may be fewer thrills but there is apt to be a greater allotment of contentment.

Sleep Best Beauty Aid

By MME. QUI VIVE

We give fair warning. We are about to bawl out the pretty light night owls, girls who prowl around the house at all hours and the ones who come trailing in at dawn.

Every waking hour we are using up energy, wearing ourselves down. Every sleeping hour we are picking up and mending. The body hungers for sleep as it hungers for food and drink. Why can't the late-to-bed girls understand that? Why fling cash-coin-spending-change for cosmetics when a few nights of restful slumber will clear the complexion, brighten the eyes, stimulate the spirits, put pepper in the steps?

During sleep the human system has a housecleaning. Poisonous wastes are disposed of. New cells are taking the place of old ones. The nervous system as well as the muscles is picking up energy. Young girls especially need long hours of sleep, regular hours too.

If you are a poor sleeper try to check your racing thoughts. Don't haul out your old troubles and review them. That is a bad habit. The mind can be trained to be tranquil unless there is some anxiety present. Think of pleasant places, deep forests, quiet rivers. Visualize them. Your brain pictures will melt into dreams.

The body must not be too cool or too warm, the mattress should be level, not too soft.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"That's just about your speed," she said venomously. "Hit anybody who's down. But there's nothing I can do except take it, so go ahead—insult me all you want."

"There is nothing more I wish to say to you," I told her equably, "except to give you your directions for leaving here. Have you a key to the suite you just left?"

"Yes," she said sulkily.

"Then we will untie you and take you to the door, keeping this room dark. We will open the door a trifle and, if there is no one in the hall, you may go back to your room and think up some plausible excuse for your delay which you can give to Mr. Milner."

Nurse Takes Hand.

"And suppose there is somebody in the hall?" she queried.

"Then you will make no sound and wait in here while I decide what is to be done," I said.

"You quite fancy yourself as the goddess of the machine, don't you?" she gibed.

"Be quiet, you!" she snapped, and there was that in her voice which brought Avis Arlen to instant attention.

"I didn't mean—" she faltered.

"Never mind what you meant," Miss Whitlock said. "I'm not interested. Just keep a civil tongue in your head, that's all I ask."

She turned to me with a deprecatory air.

"Please forgive me for intruding," she said, "but I just couldn't stand hearing that little snip talking back to you in that way."

"You were not intruding," I said warmly. "I don't mind anything she says, for I can 'think of nothing of less consequence'."

Avis Is Cautioned.

"Are we going pretty soon?" Avis whined.

"As soon as I've given you one caution," I replied. "Remember, you're to say no word of what has happened in this room to anyone in the hotel. I know that you will not tell Mr. Veritzen. It would be worth your job and whatever friendship he has for you. But you are not to mention this occurrence to anybody. Do you understand?"

"Oh I understand all right," she said docilely. "You don't need to be afraid I'll spill any beans."

"I know you won't," I told her confidently, and then I nodded to Miss Whitlock.

"Please untie her," I said. In another minute she had taken the strips of cloth from her wrists and ankles.

Orders Her to Stand.

"Stand up, please!" I told Avis, and she rose to her feet.

"Please bring her to the door behind me, keeping her out of range of it," I told the nurse. Then I went swiftly to the door, first switching off the lamp, and opened it the length of the chain.

In the lighted hall outside, with his back to the elevator and his eyes fixed on our door, stood Mr. Milner, the hotel manager.

I closed the door softly again, knowing that he could not have seen which one of the room's occupants had opened it, and went back to the others.

"What's the matter?" Miss Whitlock asked.

"I've had to change my plans," I whispered.

"Does that mean I'm not going out of here?" Avis asked.

"I don't know what it means," I said crossly as I went to the door of the big suite. "Keep her here, Miss Whitlock, until I think things out."

Little Touches Make Food

WHO MAKES the best cook, a man or a woman?

We all have our opinions, but it is worthwhile listening to Crosby Gaige, the famous theatrical producer, who is one of the finest cooks in the country. Crosby thinks that men are the best cooks, the men who are chefs de cuisine of the great hotels and in the homes of the wealthy. Many of the world's famous delicacies bear the names of Vatel, Careme, Escoffier or Soyer.

Of course, Mr. Gaige admits that the woman who turns out 21 acceptable meals for her family each week deserves more credit than any creator of a new dish. No second cooks or underlings are at her beck and call. She gets no fabulous salary and perhaps no encouragement except the plates coming back for more.

Much She Can Learn.

But, says Mr. Gaige, there is much she can learn from the great chefs of the world. They cook primarily to please men's palates. If a man with sophisticated tastes becomes a patron of the chef's table, that is an accolade. A woman's notion of what constitutes good food may not be her husband's.

What do men look for in their food? Adequate nourishment? Flavor? They look for both. Men like simple food with subtle overtones of flavor that enhance the basic one. A thick sirloin steak is every husband's idea of suitable masculine fare, opines Crosby Gaige. But what he likes is a proper dressing for it.

Want a sauce for steak? Here's one. Put one-half cup butter in a saucepan to melt with one clove of garlic, cut in pieces. This comes out in a few minutes. Now stir into the melted butter a tablespoon of horeradish, a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, salt, ground pepper and two teaspoons paprika. Keep it hot and pour it over the steak as it is served

Something Else.

With the steak goes a salad, perhaps, despite the fact that most men won't eat salad, calling lettuce rabbit's food. Well, when lettuce is in its pristine state, that may be true. But lettuce in the proper spicy salad — that's something else again, says champion cook Gaige.

Watch Hill farm dressing is his contribution to the art of finer living. Ingredients are one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, three tablesspoons tarragon vinegard, one teaspoon chopped onion, one-half teaspoon chopped parsley, nine tablespoons olive oil and clove garlic. Mix the mustard, salt and sugar into a smooth paste with the vinegar. Add onion parsley and garlic, crushed. Let stand for an hour. Remove garlic. Then add olive oil sparingly, stirring constantly to form an emulsion. Use dressing sparingly And is it good!

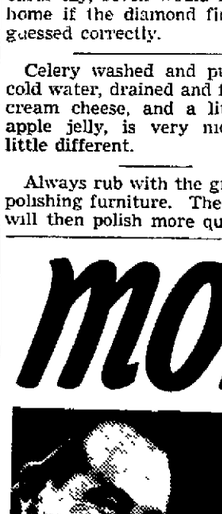
GAUGE YOUR PARTNER

ON MANY a deal there is no such thing as an absolutely direct answer to the question of what is the correct or best bidding? The answer depends upon another question. What kind of partner did you have? It also involves the question of what conventions, artificial or otherwise, you were using.



(Dealer. North. Both sides vulnerable.)

What may be a sound course of bidding opposite an astute partner can be very bad with an inexperienced player opposite you. It was sad to see what happened to this deal when a South player trained to play with experts, failed to temper his actions when lined up with a relative newcomer to the game.

South responded to his partner's 1-Diamond with 2-No Trump whereupon North, who had learned the right way to bid two-suiters, called 3-Clubs. Now South invited a slam with 4-No Trump, which never would have been passed by the partners to whom he was accustomed. This time he suffered the chagrin of hearing his mate pass, so lost a nice slam bonus.

Opposite such a partner, he would have done better by slamming into 6-No Trump as soon as he heard his partner's opening bid. There was hardly an early chance that this could not be made, if his partner had an opening bid. As the cards lay, seven would have been home if the diamond finesse was guessed correctly.

Celery washed and put in ice-cold water, drained and filled with cream cheese, and a little crab-apple jelly, is very nice and a little different.

Always rub with the grain when polishing furniture. The furniture will then polish more quickly.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

With the club K led against South's 3-Hearts, how should East proceed with the defense?

THEATERS

A fine example of the woes of film makers is found in the South American showing of "Men With Wings". The picture plays a glowing tribute to the Wright brothers as the first men to fly a heavier-than-air craft But in South America they claim that Santos Dumont really deserves the honor. So prints of the picture released down there will carry a foreword, explaining that people in the United States mistakenly believe that the Wright brothers accomplished the miracle. Which may work—until people from the States see the pictures down there and then the Paramount office will hear about it

Rascals at Madison.

The Borrah Minnovitch "Harmonica Rascals", who return to the Madison today for a two-day engagement, are expected to find a warm welcome awaiting them from Mansfield followers. These harmonica artists, who can make jitterbug music sound like symphony and vica versa, made a hit on their appearance here last year. A rah-rah college picture, "Campus Confessions", with Betty Grable and Eleanore Whitney, Cleveland dancer, provides the screen fare.

Ohio Demonstrates Television.

Television enters into "Five of A Kind", the third picture starring the Dionne quints, and provides a climax when the five small stars are brought to a waiting audience by means of television. Claire Trevor and Ceasar Romero are rival newspaper reporters who use the quints as sort of a football to kick around for public entertainment. Jean Hersholt, Slim Summerville and John Qualen are featured.

"Two Gun Justice."

No Western star handles the two guns better than Col. Tim McCoy, former Indian agent of Wyoming, and who plays the dashing hero in "Two Gun Justice" being shown at the Majestic today. Disguised as a Spanish bandit, he comes to Mesquite to help bring law and order. Betty Compson plays opposite him. "Personal Secretary" is also shown.

Cook Crashes Society.

Many sly jabs at the snobbish rich are taken in "Lady Tubbs", the rollicking society comedy at the Park, in which Alice Brady plays the camp cook who crashed society with a fake title and fortune. She not only has a lot of fun herself, but she aids Dan Cupid. An eerie mystery, "Condemned To Live", is also on the bill.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, October 22.

THE ASTRAL influences for this day point to great progress and prosperity, with affairs moving under high pressure, stimulated by an expansive ambition to accomplish mighty and endurable objectives. And while all such are under fine stimuli, with much promise of achievement, there may be tenacious obstacles, disappointments and postponements to cope with. Some arduous effort may excite bitter opposition or hostility, which should be met with tact, diplomacy or strategy.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great opportunity, with promise of success and prosperity. However, their aggressive and bold efforts may provoke hostility
